KENT STATE UNIVERSITY
KENT, OHIO
OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

June 1963

To All Students, Alumni, Faculty and Staff:

As I contemplate my nineteen years on this campus, I realize how rewarding they have been, though sometimes strenuous. My greatest rewards have come from watching the thousands of students as they grow and develop in the environment of this campus, and go on to advanced study or to a vocation, distinguishing themselves and their alma mater.

I cannot refrain from mentioning, too, the great satisfactions and pleasure I have had in being associated with the scholars who are or have been on our faculty. Growth has been continuous and rapid, demanding increase in staff in the fields of instruction, business and finance. The loyal and devoted persons in these areas have helped immeasurably with the burdens of this office, and I shall always owe them a great debt.

After so many rewarding years, I have mingled feelings about leaving, but time is catching up with me. We shall be living here, and our affection for and interest in the University will never falter.

Faithfully,

President

Dedication

President Bowman has played such a significant role in the life of Kent State University for the past 19 years that his retirement will be difficult for many of us to accept. Under his guidance a pattern of growth was developed which has increased the enrollment, facilities, acreage, faculty and academic reputation of the University. This multiple growth in Kent's stature has been achieved by Dr. Bowman's sincere dedication to Kent State University and the welfare of its students and faculty. For this reason, the staff of the 1963 Chestnut Burr respectfully dedicates this book to Dr. George A. Bowman.

Patterns of growth are many in form. In recognizing this, President Bowman encouraged the upkeep and improvement of existing facilities along with building construction. Even the most insignificant piece of equipment or bit of remodeling needed during this, possibly the most dynamic, period of Kent State University was anticipated during the Bowman administration. Worn classrooms were modernized, insufficient lighting was replaced and the natural beauty of the University's wooded campus was improved. Trained specialists have been permanently added to the payroll to see that any and all refurbishing can be made without the slightest delay and least expense. The school now employs regular gardeners, carpenters, electricians, glass workers and other skilled staff.

Funds from the State's treasury could not keep pace with the growth of the University as shortages of student housing and classroom space threatened. Unable to impress legislators with the need for expansion in housing, President Bowman and his staff turned to private loans and assistance from the Federal Housing Authority. Under his plan eight residence halls, valued at more than ten million dollars, were constructed without cost to Ohio's taxpayers. But the State Legislature was the only source for funds to build needed classrooms, and President Bowman made frequent trips to Columbus to speak before finance committees on the needs of the University. Although his words were sometimes ignored, President Bowman stubbornly continued to fight for better classroom facilities.

ARTS AND SCIENCES
Opened in 1962.

The newly constructed Arts and Sciences Building reflects the forward thinking of President Bowman. The academic center, a product of his legislative battles, is a 2.5 million dollar structure. Functional with such facilities as air conditioning and indirect lighting, the building features a strikingly bold appearance. The blue-paneled outer walls and all-glass entrance are duplicated nowhere else on campus. In addition to classrooms, the Arts and Sciences Building houses numerous seminar rooms for departmental use and two lecture halls, one with a seating capacity of 450. The ground floor, location of the Registrar's Office, is a hub of activity in the University.

RECTANGULAR TRANSPARENCIES
"Through a glass darkly."

The physical growth of the campus during the Bowman administration is indeed impressive. More than two-thirds of all buildings have been turned from blueprint to reality under his guidance. Since 1944, when he assumed the presidency, the Health Center, three temporary classroom buildings and the University warehouse have been constructed. Among modern facilities for students are four residence halls for women — Terrace, Verder, Dunbar and Prentice — and four for men—Johnson, Lake, Olson and Stopher. Quarters for married students will soon be completed, and the first coed dormitories are taking shape. Other large-scale projects include Memorial Gymnasium, Memorial Stadium, Van Deusen Hall, a library addition and the Student Union Building. Latest of President Bowman's ventures are the Speech and Music Building and the Arts and Sciences Building, monuments to his vision for growth.

No man ever left less to chance in guiding the physical growth of an institution than President Bowman. Each structure built during his tenure of office is both attractive and practical. From the victory bell on the Commons to the buildings that surround it, there is evidence of a deliberate "pattern of growth." Whether it be one section of the campus or the entire University, symmetry and harmony are evident.

THE FINISHED FUNCTIONAL PRODUCT . . .

. . . FROM PLANNING
AND EFFORT . . .

. . . LEAVING THE NATURAL BEAUTY.

At the end of this decade it is estimated that there will be more than a 70 per cent increase in college enrollments. The President has helped to prepare the University's facilities for this increase. Additional residence halls are now underway, and requests for additional classroom space are before the legislators. And, the Bowman administration had already obtained land for considerable future expansion. The total acreage of the campus in 1944 was 105. Today it is 556 acres, plus a 200-acre airport.

The physical growth of the University stands as a monument to Dr. Bowman's planning ability. The impetus he has given the University's campus expansion will be felt in succeeding generations. Dr. Bowman has established the pattern and procured valuable land that will make possible the continuation of the School's growth. He not only has kept pace with a growing institution, but he has made it possible for others to continue building an educational plant that can be among the finest in the State.

THE MEANS OF GROWTH . . .

. . . HAVE BEEN CONSTANTLY APPARENT . . .

. . . FOR NINETEEN YEARS.

When Dr. Bowman took office, the presidency of the University was a "one-man job." As the University grew, the work of the president increased. Not wishing to become the indispensable man or to hinder the operation of the School by holding too tightly to every duty, President Bowman surrounded himself with able assistants. As the work continued, two of his assistants were elevated to vice presidents. Dr. Robert White was named Vice President of Academic Affairs in 1958, and John W. Bunn was designated Vice President in Charge of Financial Affairs in 1962. This delegation of authority has been in no sense an abdication of responsibility for Dr. Bowman. The president with his staff has steadfastly guided the University's growth in cooperation with the Board of Trustees.

A basic, yet anticipated, disadvantage of a progressive and conscientious administration is that through its work present facilities and procedures become inadequate. An expanding enrollment inevitably resulted in tight quarters for the registration and admissions staffs. Because of the booming number of students during Dr. Bowman's term of office, from 900 in 1944 to 10,000 at present, the offices of Registrar Charles E. Atkinson and Director of Admissions Richard Rotzel outgrew their base of operations in the Atrium. Last year they relocated on the first floor of the new Arts and Sciences Building to handle the thousands of letters from prospective students and class schedules they process annually.

SYMBOLIC OF THE PH. D.
Attainment of the highest academic honor.

The measure of a University is not how many buildings or how much land it has, nor is it the number of students who enroll. Rather, it is the quality of the student and the capabilities of his instructor. Academic yardsticks now restrict the admission of below-average high school graduates. This improves the quality of the raw material and has reduced the number of failures. To increase the caliber of instruction, the emphasis for the hiring and promotion of faculty members is placed on advanced degrees and practical experience in the field. The apex of President Bowman's efforts to advance the academic climate of the University was reached in 1961 when a doctor of philosophy program was inaugurated. When a university has the resources to offer the Ph. D., it signifies that it has matured. Another mark of a university is a museum. Kent State University does not have one, but it does have a committee that was set up by President Bowman this year to study the practical need for a museum. The establishment of this committee again shows President Bowman's awareness of the balanced growth pattern of a flourishing university.

Dr. Bowman is a man with a strong sense of what is right and wrong. He is a fraternity man himself but does not permit the Greeks to become the focal point of the campus. He is an avid sports fan, but he will not permit athletics to supersede the value of an education or honest work. He knows the University needs funds but is reluctant to raise the cost of attending classes because he believes a state-supported school should be within the reach of every income group.

President Bowman is not the personification of an omniscient machine. But what he has done in his capacity as president of Kent State University has increased the worth of the institution and the value of our diplomas. Dr. Bowman will walk out of our lives this June when he leaves the Office of the University President, but he leaves with the knowledge that his work has materially shaped the future of Kent State University. For this we are grateful.

Research

Tapeworms, monkeys, molecules — all are part of research being done by faculty and graduate students. While Kent considers teaching its primary duty, original research work is coming into importance as the curriculum expands to include many graduate degrees. It now offers these degrees: M. Ed., M.B.A., M.S., M.F.A. and Ph. D. The awarding of the master of arts degree and the founding of a graduate school at Kent were authorized by the State Legislature. Kent gained University status in 1935. To encourage advanced study in business, education, the humanities, social studies and the sciences, the University Research Committee was formed in 1958 under the leadership of Vice President Robert White. Among the group's first measures was the award of faculty research grants. With aid from federal, state and private sources, faculty grants have totaled a half million dollars in the last five years. Through this financial aid, professors are able to bring the most recent discoveries to graduate students. The University believes that a strong graduate program can only be carried on if the instructors themselves pursue original research.

Believing that research and teaching are simultaneous functions of the faculty, 63 professors have organized 80 research projects in the last five years. However, faculty interest in University research dates to 1946 when faculty and community members formed the Kent Research Group. Though not officially connected with the University, the group encouraged individual investigation and scholarly writing. To further these aims, the University offered study grants. Financial support came in three forms: Alumni Fund Awards, Summer Faculty Research Employment and Research Time Grants. The time grants permitted professors partial relief from teaching duties during the year to organize study projects. Especially active in the program were instructors in the biology, chemistry, English, history, physics, psychology and special education departments. Their investigation varied from the study of marine food chains to critical analyses of literary works. Representative of Kent's biological investigation are studies of electrolyte solutions made for the United States Air Force by Prof. Thomas Myers. Three physics projects involved proton study, while the psychology faculty made advances in the study of stimulus-reward theories. In the English department Prof. Glenn Burne wrote The English Nineties and French Literary Theory under the Summer Faculty Research Employment Fund. Communal societies of the American frontier was the research topic of Prof. Hallock Raup, geography department head. In addition to many studies of gifted children, the education department sponsored an investigation of what high school students do in study halls. Included in numerous history projects was Prof. William Zornow's book Harry S. Truman: The Story of the Presidency. A campus project that made its world premiere at Kent was Prof. John White's opera based on Washington Irving's The Legend of Sleepy Hollow. The comic opera in three acts was presented by the music department in E. Turner Stump Theatre last spring.

FRED NEUMAN

Stimulus generalization and the pigeon.

In laboratories and behind desks, Kent's graduate students perform systematic, patient studies from original sources to discover facts and principles. Future psychologists, chemists, physicists and biologists are working toward M.A., M.S. and Ph. D. degrees in their major fields. In the psychology department's recently acquired primate laboratory, graduate students are busy on new theories to add to the knowledge in this science of behavior. Of prime importance is their understanding of how patterns of behavior can be predicted by controlling environmental situations for both animals and human beings.

DAVE MILITICH

Graduate student Fred Neuman is experimenting with pigeons on stimulus generalization for his masters thesis. The ability of monkeys to solve complex problems is the topic of Jon Williams in his research with Profs. Robert Treichler and Robert Morin. Their work is the first neural-behavioral study involving primates that has been done at Kent. Within the last decade psychological research of man's awareness of his physical balance has been concentrated on a person's ability to orient himself in space. In connection with this, Robert Olson is working on the effects of set and practice upon man's perception of verticality.

The molecule, one of the smallest bits of matter known to scientists, is one of the largest research topics of Kent's graduate students in chemistry. Synthesis of new and unusual molecules which contain a nitrogen atom in the ring structure is the research topic of George Newkome. Newkome must find the best way to make this type of molecule, study its physical and chemical properties and eventually learn what physiological effects it will have on the human organism. George Kletecka, a Kent graduate, is studying the ability of certain molecules to attach themselves to or to complex themselves with other molecules which are able to induce cancers in laboratory animals and humans.

GEORGE KLETECKA

In association with the chemistry department, the physics department offers major study in chemical physics leading to a Ph. D. degree. Presently David Koltenbah is constructing and testing apparatus which will be used in his doctoral program to study the effect known as nuclear or pure quadrupole resonance. Study of this effect is important in determining molecular and crystalline structures and is under increasing attention by chemical physicists. Raymond Wise is preparing a masters thesis involving a study of the motion of water molecules in various hydrated crystals.

Cells, snails and salamanders provide these topics for biology graduate students. Michael Sipes is doing field work in a taxonomic survey of the salamanders of northeastern Ohio. Snail parasites concern Dave Militich who is working on a thesis about the type, number, and morphology of the chromosomes and the internal anatomy of parasitoid larvae. Militich's work may lead to the biological control of undesirable snails which transmit diseases to humans. Dick Klatt, a former Kent physiology major, is conducting research on the nematode porkworm. For his work, Klatt is using live human embryonic skeletal muscle tissue. He plans to collect the young larval stages of the porkworm from the blood of infected albino rats. In cooperation with Prof. Vincent Gallicchio, the extracts of certain human parasitic worms will be tested against a strain of human cancer cells to see if the extracts have any effect on the mitotic division of the cells.

REVIEWER
Of last night's work.

Carnival-like atmosphere descends on the University with the arrival of Campus Day, Kent's oldest and most festive social event. Eye-pleasing floats, open houses, a relaxing Songfest, bands, a parade and the 1962 Campus Day queen contributed to the excitement of the festive day last May. The day's whirl began with the judging of 30 floats on the theme of Jules Verne's Around the World in Eighty Days. Hours of stretching chicken wire into symbolic forms and arranging crepe paper flowers in story-telling patterns were washed out this year as a 15-minute rain drenched entries lined up on Midway Drive for judging. On the front campus, showers did not stop Delta Upsilon fraternity's "K" girl, Nancy Epstein, from the traditional painting of the cement K near the library. Alter members of Cardinal and Blue Key honoraries marched in processional, Joan Mikluschak was crowned 1962 Campus Day queen. From her throne on the front campus, Queen Joan and four attendants watched the annual Maypole Dance in her honor.

Time moved quickly for spectators at the 49th Campus Day. As weather changed from drizzling to sizzling, the patched and dried floats, KSU and high school bands and ROTC units moved down the streets of Kent. Curbs were jammed. Record crowds viewed the parade led by Grand Marshall Mona Fletcher, political science professor. When the caravan of cars, musicians and military ended, Mid-American Conference Relays began at Memorial Field. Queen Joan and her attendants, reigning over this event, presented medals and ribbons to relay winners. In the afternoon the Men's Glee Club and Merry-men performed in an outdoor band concert.

The relays started with a parade from the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity house to the Sig Ep house on Summit Street. There, competitors with athletic prowess and physical stamina participated in the traditional games including the egg toss, balloon swat, coke chug, pie eating contest, balloon pass, wheelbarrow race and sack race. These games provide one of the few times independent organizations can compete directly against Greeks. Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Phi Kappa Theta fraternities scored the same number of points to share the May Day Relay Trophy.

Rowboat Regatta

Cool weather and a damaged picnic grounds failed to daunt participants in the 23rd Annual Rowboat Regatta last spring. Featuring water games, dancing, trophies and food, the regatta began with an auto caravan from Terrace Hall to Roundup Lake Park, near Aurora. Despite a wind storm which destroyed the park's main building three days before, contests for Greek and independent organizations went into full swing. Wet sports included paddleboat, surfboard, inner tube and rowboat races plus a barrel roll, canoe joust, sweat-shirt relay and tug of war. Capturing the greatest number of points in the fraternity division of the competition was Phi Kappa Theta. First-place trophies also went to Delta Gamma, in the sorority division, Johnson Hall, for independent men, and Verder Hall, for independent women. According to tradition, Queen Karen Lawrinson and her court of four princesses were thrown into the lake after her crowning. The three-day weekend, sponsored by Associated Women Students, gave mothers of Kent coeds a taste of the life of a college student, but there were no tests, term papers or classes for the 1,400 moms who attended. They were given tours of the Arts and Sciences Building and Lake and Olson halls and were entertained by the Sharks Club. After hearing a panel discussion on "The Pressures of a College Coed," they took part in Penny Carnival. Entertainment and games of chance keyed the carnival night as fraternities, sororities and independents vied for prizes in booth designs. First place for originality went to Delta Zeta, social sorority. The winning booth featured sticks with numbers. The holder of the numbered stick corresponding to the number drawn was awarded a piece of bakery. Delta Gamma won first place in the general sorority division. Sigma Alpha Epsilon copped first for fraternities and Verder Hall was the best of the independents. Cardinal and Blue Key honoraries sponsored the event.

The traditional program opened last year with a number featuring swimmers with multi-colored parasols and little hats. The show included the annual stunt diving, as well as numbers by "geisha girls" and "Kabucki warriors." "Judo," an act entirely student planned, featured six men swimming together in oriental fashion. The climax of the show demonstrated swimmers' skills in a number called "Sayonara." The Sharks Club is the only coed swim club in the Association for Synchronized Swimming for College Women.

Putting a new twist into the musical, 150 students under the guidance of David Freeman, NTFC director, took part in numerous nightly rehearsals last spring. Featuring a stage company of 45 and a 32-piece orchestra, Kismet had a unique scenery plan that eliminated elaborate sets. Four moveable staircases in front of a mosque comprised the stage decor. Almost as entertaining as both the singing and dancing were members of the chorus, who in full view of the audience, re-arranged the stairs from one grouping to another to form the next scene. Plans for the entirely student-operated NTFC production began in the fall with the director's selection of the show and continued through winter quarter with auditions. More than 3,000 students and community residents viewed the musical during its three performances in May.

University Theatre

A play for voices, Under Milk Wood, keyed the offerings of University Theatre during its 1962-63 season. Last spring's production of Dylan Thomas's lyric poem was a UT experiment in presenting a work not written for the stage. Under Milk Wood's rich verse met with popular approval with its series of delicate song and rhyme vignettes loosely interwoven by two narrators who never entered action on stage. The production featured 34 actors, some taking double roles to represent almost 60 characters. Realizing the need for variety in stage presentations, UT offered audiences six major plays, 20 one acts and a Sunday theatre series of plays and lectures throughout the year. This past season Kent audiences saw Lysistrata, Julius Caesar, Rhinoceros, Darkness at Noon, The Matchmaker, Little Foxes, and two operas, The Maid and The Medium.

Held on the Commons, the cook-out featured three tons of chicken, 4,500 of the barnyard brood, basted with barbecue sauce over a 200-foot smoking grill. Also on the menu were salad, dessert and a beverage. Wandering minstrels, the KSU band, gymnasts and Flasherettes entertained the gathering. Cheerleaders taught cheers to freshmen during a pep rally after the feast. Climaxing the evening, a torch parade marched to Memorial Stadium for the Shriners Day football game. The Food Service also staged a "surprise sandwich" picnic spring quarter for 4,300 meal ticket holders and an open pit chicken roast for summer schoolers and high school students at the annual summer Band Clinic.

Homecoming

Sunshine, victory and a case of mistaken identity combined to make Homecoming 1962 a break from the traditional. For the first time in many homecomings, sun outpowered showers as the Golden Flashes won a 20 to 18 football victory over the Toledo Rockets on Memorial Field. During the game's half-time an unwary student demanded a field pass from the man who was to make the annual Homecoming address. This man was President Bowman, and for the first time in 18 years the administrator had to identify himself to walk on the field. With a Kent vs. Toledo display contest, queen and open houses, the 41st Homecoming took place in bright but foot-freezing weather. The day's activities started with display judging and pre-game crowning of Queen Nancy Rickert. After the grid win spectators attended residence hall, fraternity and sorority open houses and buffets.

Papas, parading Arabs, music makers and top brass brought color and spirit to the 1962 sports season in four football extravaganzas. Featuring parades and half-time entertainment, Dad's Day, Shriners Day, Band Day and ROTC Day joined the traditional ceremonies of Homecoming to brighten grid contests of the Golden Flashes. Members of Akron's Tadmor Temple paraded with their potentate's jazz band, drum and bugle corps and 20 high school bands for the first annual Shriners game when Kent battled Xavier University in September. Fifty per cent of advance ticket sale receipts went to Shrine hospitals for crippled children. The Ohio University vs. Kent meet brought hundreds of students' fathers to the campus for Dad's Day. A campus tour, open houses, rally and Food Service spaghetti dinner highlighted this annual event. Wearing numbers corresponding to those on their sons' jerseys, dads of team members watched game action from the sidelines.

OX ROAST

Five hundred singing, cheering, torch-bearing Greeks formed the "court" for coronation ceremonies that opened Greek Week last October. With crowns of laurel leaves, Toni Perkins and George Jenkins became the Greeks' "Venus" and "Apollo" to reign over a week of activities sponsored by Panhellenic and Interfraternity councils. The week's events included a Greek-Faculty Tea, many fraternity-sorority suppers for foreign students and a lecture, "Greek Unification and Action," by Dr. Eldon Nonnomaker of Michigan State University. As part of their program of community and school service, Greeks raked leaves on the front campus, helped clean the Kent City Hall and serenaded residence halls. For night-time activities, Wills tennis courts were decorated with fraternity and sorority banners for a street dance featuring music by the Caps. The Nomads V, a folk-singing group, also presented a two-hour evening concert. Climaxing the week's festivities was an All-Greek Ox Roast on the Commons.

Pork Barrel

EDITOR'S COMMENT

Let's take the "prohibit" out of prohibition.

Kent's personnel deans, dressed as military men, stole the show at Pork Barrel last February. Led by Director of Orientation Lester Brailey, in a World War I general's uniform, the deans joined the student body in presenting Pork Barrel skits satirizing campus life. Pvt. Ronald Roskens, Corp. Ronald Beer and Petty Officer Thomas Hansmeier, deans of men, were awarded citations for snooping, cowardice and conduct unbecoming an officer, respectively. It was the first time faculty performed in the annual variety show. Twenty five student groups, basing their presentations on "Words from the Dictionary," competed for Barrel trophies.

Black light and a live goat, along with the usual actors and chorus lines, helped them carry out the theme. Theta Chi fraternity, using the word "brotherhood," took a first-place trophy for its skit about the United Nations. In independent competition, Moulton Hall won a first prize for its rendition of courtship through the ages, while a take-off on Macbeth brought Lake Hall a first place. Top winner for sororities was Alpha Chi Omega. With the word "vigor," the sorority presented a history of American physical fitness programs. Keeping Pork Barrel 1963 running smoothly were the Travelin' Men, campus folk singers, who emceed the show.

Cultural Events

Variety was the sum and substance of Kent's cultural events during the 1962-63 year. From lectures to library exhibits, University committees sponsored a program of cultural benefit to the campus community. Highlighting the Concert-Lecture Series was Dame Judith Anderson's portrayal of Medea and Lady Macbeth. The series brought many notables to Kent including the Orchestra San Pietro of Naples and James Wadsworth, former United States Ambassador to the United Nations. Many art exhibits by students, faculty and professionals graced Van Deusen Gallery. Outstanding art shows were American Prints Today, by 55 leading graphic artists, and murals by Orozco.

Adding to the cultural variety was the new Arts and Sciences Faculty Lecture Series. Featured speaker in an English series was American poet Donald Hall. The School of Music sponsored recitals by students, Faculty String Quartet and guests throughout the year. Vincent Persichetti was guest conductor at the Fourth Annual Conference on Music winter quarter. The student body contributed to culture through art work and writing published in the Kent Quarterly. In residence halls, committees brought films, speakers, art shows and a leadership seminar to residents. Rockwell Library was the setting for displays of rare books and first-edition volumes to complete the variety of cultural programs available to students this year.

Top Hop, in keeping with its name, was the "top" social event of winter quarter. Featuring the coronation of Miss Kent State and the Duke of Kent, the dance was held in Wills Gymnasium last January. "Top-hatted" gentlemen were the decorative background for 1,000 students who danced to the music of Frankie Reynold's band. During dance intermission Kathy Slagel and George Jenkins were crowned as Miss Kent State and the Duke of Kent. Both royalty had been elected by an all-campus vote the week of the event. Also at intermission Delta Upsilon fraternity presented its first "Outstanding Sorority Achievement Award" to Alpha Phi sorority for the 1961-62 school year. Top Hop was part of a weekend of Greek activities sponsored by Panhellenic and Interfraternity Councils. Other "top" events included a luncheon where Howard Walker, vice president of academic affairs at Marshall College, spoke on "Communications Between Student Organizations and Faculty." The traditional Top Hop concert was dropped this year after three singing groups cancelled out.

Since the infancy of Kent Normal School, athletics have played a vital part in the University's program. Early in Kent's history, the Silver Foxes, as the Flashes were originally known, were playing top-flight colleges in all sports. This extra-curricular program continued to grow until the University could boast of 12 varsity teams. Some eight years after Pres. George A. Bowman took office in 1944, Kent State joined its present league, The Mid-American Conference. Since the Golden Flashes have entered this league, only the wrestling team has been able to walk off with an undisputed championship. The matmen have been Kent's most successful team through the years. In the immediate past—the 1962-63 season—there was continued misfortune in basketball and football. Improvements were shown in track, cross country, rifle and golf, while the baseball team notched its third straight second-place finish in the MAC. In 1963, wrestling and field hockey had winning seasons. The tennis and swimming teams broke almost all existing records, finishing tops in the school's sports history.

Gridders Finish Under .500; Fifth in MAC

Winning four games and dropping five made 1962 a dismal year for Kent State's football squad. Coach Trevor Rees suffered his second straight losing season. Rees' charges fell below the .500 mark for the first time in his 17-year career at KSU. Bright spot in the weak Kent offensive attack was the near-sensational running of fullback Dick Merschman. The senior, after two years of varsity play, became the league's top rusher and 12th rusher in the nation. End Tom Kilker completed his varsity career by leading the team in total points scored with 26. The team's leading tackler was George Jenkins. Dick Bowling captured awards for the top sophomore and the best defensive back of the season. Jim Zucali and Jim Phelan were named as the Flashes' top linemen.

In the MAC football race the Flashes finished fifth, winning two of six league games. The season's opener for Kent was a successful venture, as the Flashes gained a 22-7 win over the Flyers at Dayton. In KSU's home opener, a 41-yard field goal spelled trouble as Xavier University squeezed by Kent in a 9-8 squeaker. Combat with Ohio U was next. The Bobcats shut-out the faltering Flashes, 21-0. Third defeat of the season came against Miami, 23-14. Following the Miami loss, Kent turned the score around, winning, 23-14, over last-place Marshall. Bowling Green, conference champ, was the next foe and won over KSU, 45-6. A Homecoming crowd cheered Kent on to its last victory of the season, 20-18, over the Toledo Rockets. Two losses ended the schedule as Louisville and Western Michigan won, 29-8 and 19-6 respectively.

MAC Sports Day

Golf matches, tennis sets and track events joined the traditional social activities of Campus Day in 1962. Sports activity was part of Mid-American Conference spring championships. In track eight records fell and three were tied as Western Michigan nosed Miami to the title. Standout of the track events was Scott Tyler, Miami speedster, who won the high hurdles. High scorer with 191½ points, Tyler also ran second in the 220-yard dash and the 220-yard low hurdles. Second in scoring was Ohio U's Darnell Mitchell. The Bobcat cinderman set an MAC record in the mile run and a new league mark in the 880. Records were also smashed in the shot put, high jump, mile relay and the 880-yard relay. In golf Marshall University smashed a long-standing Ohio U hold on the league links title. The Big Green, from Huntington, West Virginia, won the event with a 685 team score for 36 holes. Medalists for the tourney were Jim Ward and Pete Byer of Marshall with cards of 133 each. Low man for Kent was Denny Peterson with 144. As a team the Flashes finished seventh with 744. Pulling a near upset, Kent's tennis team came within a fraction of nailing the league tennis championship. Western Michigan came out on top, capturing nine points, while runner-up Kent had eight. Kent dropped the last doubles set and that gave Western the edge. Larry Stark was Kent's only MAC individual champion.

Cagers in MAC Cellar

Kent's Flashes fell to the MAC basketball cellar for the second straight year in 1963. The 1962 record of 2-19 was improved only to a 3-18 mark. Coach Bob Doll, in his second term as Flash mentor, can only look to the future. Doll has seen five Kent wins and 37 losses. But senior Denny Klug and junior Dan Norris kept the Flashes from total disaster. Together, the two players chalked up 57 per cent of the team's scoring. Kent's biggest problem was lack of rebounding. The Flashes pulled an average of 36.5 to the opponents' 46.5 rebounds per game. Win number-one of the season came on the home court as Ball State fell, 61-58. Three weeks later Kent came up with an 83-72 victory over Baldwin Wallace. In its only conference win, Kent outlasted Marshall, 73-69. Highlight of the season was Kent's meet with Loyola University, then holder of the nation's best offensive record. Loyola had scored more than 100 points in eight of 15 wins before meeting Kent. The Flashes kept them under the 100 mark but suffered a 96-55 defeat. Two games—the first and the last—were lost by one and two points respectively. Syracuse nipped Kent 36-35, while Ohio U in a last-second win came out on top, 64-62, in the season's final. The Flashes longest losing period came early in the year when the cagers dropped their first six games.

Falcons Top League

The 1963 Mid-American Conference cage crown went to Bowling Green. The Falcons, winning nine contests and dropping three, made a remarkable recovery after losing three of their early league games. Toledo was Bowling Green's stiffest competition for the MAC championship. The Rockets lost out in the race in the last week of play. Ohio University, Toledo and Miami finished with identical 8-4 records. Western Michigan, after a strong start, fell to a 6-6 season's final. Kent State and Marshall were hopelessly lost in last place with 1-11 records as the two teams split their series. Individual league titles went to Nate Thurmond of Bowling Green, who won his third consecutive rebound title and finished second in the league scoring race. Nipping Thurmond in the last game of the season, Many Newsome came out on top in the scoring contest. The big news as far as Kent was concerned was the repeat performance of Denny Klug's winning the loop free-throw crown. Following a near miss in setting an MAC free throw record, Klug finished his varsity career by achieving a remarkable .870 percentage. Defeating runner-up Newsome, Klug netted 74 of 85 charity tosses.

Mermen Dunk 8 Foes

An impressive 8-4 swimming record topped Kent's winter sports season. Three of the four swim losses for coach Bill Hoover's team came at the hands of Mid-American Conference foes. Western Michigan, Miami and Bowling Green handily defeated Kent. Win number one for the Flashes came over Grove City, 62-33. Two more successes pushed the Kent total to 3-0 as Carnegie Tech fell, 62-33, and Ohio University wilted, 58-37. The Ohio U win marked the first Kent victory since 1956 over the Bobcats. Following the Ohio meet, Western Michigan handed Kent its first loss, 59-36. Baldwin Wallace was Kent's next victim, 64-31. Miami dunked the Flashes, 65-30. Wittenberg and Slippery Rock came out on the short end of 53-40 and 60-35 counts, while Bowling Green and Notre Dame upended the Flashes late in the season. Outstanding in the Flash attack was the sensational diving of sophomore Ray Giacometti. The tanker, setting the new mark at 243, broke the school record on three different occasions. Giacometti won all but one individual diving contest during the season.

Begala's Matmen Keep Winning

Winter 1963 marked another winning season for wrestling coach Joe Begala and his Golden Flash matmen. Completing an 8-2 dual competition mark, the Kent grapplers lost only to Miami and Ohio State. Miami nipped Kent, 14-13, in the first loss, while the Buckeyes decisioned the Flashes, 20-8. Opening contest for the matmen was a sweep in the Memorial Gym quadrangular match between Kent, Western Michigan, Ball State and Bowling Green. Kent wound up tops in the event with 66 points. A big win during the regular season came over arch-rival Ohio University as the Flashes won, 22-8. Other Flash victims were Cincinnati, Marshall, Western Michigan, Ball State, Baldwin Wallace and Bowling Green.

The season's victories pushed Begala's all-time Kent record to 211-15-3, giving him more wins than any other college wrestling coach. Since his first year here in 1929, Begala has produced 29 team championships, 172 individual champions and 26 MAC individual champs. In the all-important Mid-American Conference competition in 1963, the Golden Flashes finished a disappointing fourth. Toledo won the crown with Miami and Ohio U coming ahead of Kent. Bill Pierson, Bob Shearer and Wayne Linke captured second-place finishes for the Flashes, but no one won an individual title for Kent. Gary Pesuit, expected to take the MAC crown in the 167-pound division, was injured late in the season and missed the league competition.

Riflers Hit 4-4 Record

Kent's rifle team finished the 1963 season with an even 4-4 mark. Only Akron University was able to turn the trick twice on the Golden Flash marksmen. In the first Akron-Kent meeting, the Zips nipped the Flashes, 1372-1370. Akron led a second encounter, 1374-1369. The other two Flash season losses were credited to Gannon, 1367-1366, and to Youngstown, 1388-1364. Finishing second in the Lake Erie Inter-Collegiate Rifle Conference, Kent chalked up its first win over John Carroll, 1337-1335. Gannon was the Flashes' next victim as the Erie, Pennsylvania, team fell, 1384-1340. The fifth match, against Youngstown, went Kent's way, 1386-1380. In the last match, Kent pulled the league's highest team total by gunning down John Carroll, 1405-1366. Leading shooter for the season was senior Jim Miller, who finished second in conference ratings.

Harriers Improve

Cross country fortunes continued to climb on the Kent scene as Coach Doug Raymond instilled newfound enthusiasm into the Flash harriers. First 1962 win for the Kent cross country team was at the expense of nearby Hiram College as Kent came out on top, 25-31. Second win of the young season for Kent was in a triangular meet with Ohio Wesleyan and Baldwin Wallace. The Flashes led the way with 33 points, while Baldwin Wallace had 42 to Ohio Wesleyan's 52. Slippery Rock State Teacher's College proved too much for Kent in the third match as the visitors romped over the Flashes, 19-42. Kent found the going rough in the next two triangular meets. Wisconsin, Ohio State and Kent battled on the Buckeye campus with Wisconsin winning and Ohio State coming in second. Kent finished a distant third. Ohio University notched a triangular win with Pittsburgh and Kent. The Bobcats wound up with 17 points, while Pitt and Kent had 47 and 70 respectively. The Flashes placed fifth in the Mid-American Conference relays to close the season.

Flash Diamondmen Runners-Up Again

Under a new head coach the Kent diamondmen battled gamely in 1962 but fell slightly below the .500 mark for the season. But in the Mid-American Conference race the baseball team picked up a well-earned second-place finish. Dick Paskert took the helm in 1962 after 13 years as assistant coach and guided his players to their third runner-up finish in the league. Paskert, a 1947 graduate of KSU, was an outstanding baseball and football player here. Paskert's Flashes fell short of the league title as they absorbed four conference losses. Western Michigan won the MAC for the ninth time in the last 14 years.

Leading Kent diamond hitter was junior Ken Zitz. The right fielder broke into the starting lineup early in the year and went on to pace the Flash hitting attack. Mike Mowchan turned in a credible 5-2 record on the mound. He lost the last game of the season to Pittsburgh by a ninth inning home run. The final loss cost Kent a winning season as the team ended the year with a 9-10-1 record. Ken LaVergne, Roger Cook and Fred Loeffler completed three years of varsity play for the Flashes. LaVergne and Cook were infielders, while Loeffler was pitcher.

Netters Best Ever

Sporting their best record in the school's history, the Golden Flash tennis team wound up with only one loss in 11 dual matches. Only Ohio University was able to turn the trick and defeat Kent's netters. Karl Chesnutt's tennis men also came within one point of winning the Mid-American Conference net title. A loss in the doubles put Kent in second place with Western Michigan gaining the top spot. Sophomore Larry Stark was Kent's first MAC champion. He had an unblemished record in dual and doubles competition. Junior Ray Vens was also undefeated in dual and doubles play during the season. Captaining the Flash net squad was Paul Walker who had just returned from the varsity basketball court. Biggest win of the tennis season came against arch-rival Western Michigan. The Flashes nipped the Broncos for the first Kent conquest of Western Michigan. The Broncos had a 29-game winning streak before falling to the Flashes.

Coach Jay Fischer's linksters polled 744 points for a sixth-place finish in the Mid-American Conference competition played on Meadowview Golf Course. Marshall University won the event with 685 points. During the season Youngstown University challenged the Flashes to two matches with the Penguins winning one and tying the other. Twice the Flashes were almost shut out. Ohio University defeated Kent $22\frac{1}{2}-11\frac{1}{2}$, and Marshall knocked the linksters $17\frac{1}{2}-1\frac{1}{2}$. Wins during the season came over Toledo, Baldwin Wallace, Pittsburgh and Miami. Competing in the All-Ohio Golf Tournament in Columbus, the Flashes finished 12th from a field of 20 Ohio college teams. Near the end of the season the frosh golf squad completed an undefeated record by conquering the varsity linksters, $16\frac{1}{2}-11\frac{1}{2}$.

Cindermen Find Winning Formula

Doug Raymond, in his second year as Flash track coach, continued to rebuild Kent's cinder hopes. During 1962 he led his charges to an outstanding 5-2 season record. Wins came over Bowling Green, Toledo, Slippery Rock and Baldwin Wallace. The Air Force Academy and Ohio University bested the Flashes in two dual meets. At one point in the schedule the cindermen had won three straight meets to mark an unprecedented high in a KSU track winning streak. Completing a successful season in the low and high hurdles, Jerry Warfield paced the Flash attack. Coach Raymond re-introduced javelin throw competition last year after its long absence on the Kent slate of track contests.

Unbeaten Hockey Squad Tops List

Women's field hockey team, holders of the school's best win-loss mark, notched another undefeated season during 1962. Only once in six years have the Golden Flash hockey players tasted defeat. The College of Wooster upended Kent in 1960 to mar an otherwise unblemished record. Three foes fell to the Kent coeds in 1962. First, the Ohio State University Buckeye squad was handed a 5-1 defeat. Next on the card was Bowling Green who fell 4-1. Wooster, the old nemesis, couldn't match shots with Kent as the Flashes came out on top, 4-1. A match with Eastern Michigan was postponed because of wet grounds and was never re-scheduled. H.P.E. instructor, Fay Biles, coached KSU's most successful team.

Royalty

Adding grace and charm to the usual campus festivities are coeds who compete for the title of queen. Major queenships on campus include Homecoming, Rowboat Regatta, Military Ball, Top Hop and Campus Day. Title winners, chosen in student elections, reign over campus activities during these respective events. Their "queen-for-a-day" role includes contributing their prettiness to the success of the social functions. The queens add that "extra something" which transforms the usual University events to special occasions.

Miss Kent State

Top moment of the Top Hop Dance was the crowning of Kathy Slagel as Miss Kent State. The senior sociology major was chosen as Kent's "Miss" in a general campus election. A native of Ironton, Miss Slagel has been a student staff counselor and the secretary of Prentice Hall. Angel Flight and Student Council are also among her activities. She is past president of Gamma Phi Beta social sorority and treasurer of Panhellenic Council. She represented her sorority at its national convention in New Jersey last summer and is active in the Gamma Phi Beta project of entertaining children from psychiatric hospitals. A member of Alpha Kappa Delta, national sociology honorary, Miss Slagel is planning to become a university residence counselor.

Duke of Kent

A native of Cadiz, George Jenkins was chosen to reign over Top Hop as Duke of Kent. One of the tri-captains of the varsity football team, Jenkins has been vice president of Varsity K. Besides earning two football letters at Kent, the pre-law student has served as president of Alpha Tau Omega social fraternity and Blue Key honorary. As director of his fraternity's scholarship committee, he has published a booklet, On Becoming A Scholar, given to Kent's incoming freshmen. A member of Pi Gamma Nu, national social science honorary, and Pi Sigma Alpha, national political science honorary, Jenkins was named to an edition of Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities.

Rowboat Regatta

A crown of flowers designated Karen Lawrinson as the 1962 Rowboat Regatta Queen. With her court of four attendants, Miss Lawrinson reigned over the annual spring event held at Roundup Lake Park last May. As part of her royal duties Queen Karen had the traditional honor of being thrown into the icy lake after her coronation. The 19-year-old sophomore from Toledo was elected to her throne by an all-campus vote. She has been active at Kent State as a freshman cheerleader and is a resident of Prentice Hall. Majoring in two-year office administration in the College of Business Administration, she is planning to return to her home town to work as a secretary after she completes her course of studies at Kent.

Homecoming

As their hostess to welcome returning alumni, the student body selected Nancy Rickert for their 1962 Homecoming Queen. The junior from Souderton, Pennsylvania, has been active on campus as a member of the Prentice Hall chorus and the Spanish and English clubs.

For Delta Zeta social sorority she has served as rush chairman, rush counselor, representative to Panhellenic Council and a member of the Panhellenic chorus. The 20-year-old coed is majoring in Spanish and minoring in English. After graduating from Kent, she plans to teach.

Campus Day

As a queen with two royal titles, Joan Mikluschak is a distinctive member of Kent's royal circle. Miss Mikluschak, a 1962 Kent State graduate, reigned as combination Campus Day Queen and Queen of the Mid-American Conference Spring Sports Meet last May 19. While attending the University, Miss Mikluschak majored in mathematics in the College of Education. She was a member of the Kent State Symphony Orchestra, Pi Mu Epsilon, mathematics honorary, and the Newman Club. Currently she is teaching in the Parma School System. In addition to presiding over the 49th Campus Day, Queen Joan's duties as a two-fold monarch included presenting trophies and medals to the victors of the MAC relays. She was guest of honor at the annual Campus Day luncheon and was feted in a special serenade at the dance that evening. The queen was elected by the student body from a field of five finalists.

With two trophies, a sparkling tiara and dozens of red roses, Holly Wilbert reigned as queen of the 16th Annual Military Ball. Chosen by ROTC cadets, Miss Wilbert was honored with a saber arch at the dance held in Myers Lake Ballroom last November. The 20-year-old junior from McMurray, Pennsylvania, has served as Liaison Officer First Lieutenant of Angel Flight and as an Air Force ROTC sponsor. She was co-chairman of the Army-Air Force Day sports meet. A member of Delta Gamma social sorority, Queen Holly has been active as assistant rush chairman, social chairman, representative to Panhellenic Council and pledge class historian. Majoring in art education, she is planning to teach after graduating from Kent. Miss Wilbert had been one of four attendants to the Homecoming Queen.

Academic and Personnel

The personnel, academic and administrative staffs, always vital to the smooth operation of the University, grow as the campus makes increased demands. The personnel staff, once housed in the two small offices of the deans of men and women, has expanded during President Bowman's administration to 40 members requiring the entire first floor of Kent Hall. From residence counselor to policeman, from academic dean to maintenance man, the aims of the staffs center around the desire to serve the campus and to maintain the learning process.

Dean Nygreen and Mrs. Helen Martinkus.

Dean of Students

Regulating the non-academic concerns of the expanding student population are three personnel deans. Margaret Forsythe, dean of women; Ronald Roskens, dean of men, and Glen Nygreen, dean of students, are directly responsible to the University President for policies concerning more than 9,000 students.

With the aid of three assistant deans, Margaret Forsythe supervises women's residence counselors, Associated Women Students and Panhellenic Council. A district director of Alpha Lambda Delta, freshman women's honorary, Dean Forsythe has a master's degree from Syracuse University.

From the office of Ronald Roskens come policies governing men students. Besides counseling men, Dean Roskens, with his assistants, guides off-campus housing, Men's Student Association and Interfraternity Council. The Dean came to Kent in 1959 after completing his doctoral work at Iowa State University.

Dean of Students Glen Nygreen coordinates campus organizations and the functions of the Health Center. After receiving his doctor's degree from the University of Washington, Seattle, in 1954, he became director of student affairs at KSU. Dean Nygreen supervises veteran's affairs and the handling of student mail.

Academic Deans and Department Heads

From pre-forestry to aviation technology, the University's four undergraduate colleges offer courses of study to fulfill the extensive interests and goals of all who come to Kent to learn. Under direction of the academic deans and department heads, the four colleges attempt to meet the needs of students desiring liberal or specialized education.

Twelve departments in the College of Business Administration, led by Dean Robert E. Hill, offer programs leading to a bachelor of science degree in business administration. Majors in accounting, management and economics are among the many available along with a two-year office administration program.

Founded in 1959, the newest college, Fine and Professional Arts, is under the direction of Dean John J. Kamerick. Continually expanding its curriculum, the young academic branch offers a B.A. degree in seven fields, a B.S. degree in six fields and a bachelor of fine arts degree in seven major areas in art and theatre. Added to the college's offerings this year is a bachelor of music degree. Architecture students in Fine and Professional Arts are on a five-year program.

Dean Eric N. Rackham heads the College of Arts and Sciences which offers 25 major areas leading to a bachelor of arts degree, 16 fields for a B.S. degree and many special programs. Courses of study include geography in government service, pre-theology and pre-natural resources. Arts and Sciences correlates pre-professional programs in medical technology, physical therapy, pre-dentistry, pre-engineering, pre-forestry, pre-law, pre-medicine, pre-osteopathy and pre-pharmacy.

Guiding the largest and oldest academic branch, the College of Education, is Dean Clayton M. Schindler. The college offers four-year training in early childhood, elementary and secondary fields leading to a bachelor of science in education degree. Programs to prepare teachers for instructing deaf, gifted and slow learners are offered also. Education courses lead to cadet certification and dual certification in grade school-high school instruction.

KSU's own private detective is Donald L. Schwartzmiller, campus security officer. With his assistant LeRoy Peach, Schwartzmiller coordinates operations of the police department and personally investigates all matters, from parking violations to thefts, on campus. Schwartzmiller, a graduate of the Ohio State Patrol Academy, came to Kent in 1960. Before heading the KSU security service, he was with the Ohio State Patrol, Plain Clothes Division, as an investigator.

Gatekeepers of the campus are the University Police. Each night officers lock all classroom and administrative buildings in addition to patrolling women's halls and working the after-hours switchboard. Fifteen blue-uniformed patrolmen and one policewoman are responsible for the safety of University funds, for issuing traffic violations and for automobile registration. The force also investigates complaints, accidents and reports of crimes.

Physical Plant

Frozen water pipes, clogged chimney flues, warm air conditioners—these maintenance problems are referred to the employees of Kent's physical plant. The plant's staff of 70 is responsible for the upkeep of all campus buildings, and included in its duties are repairs of electric, mechanical and heating facilities. Under the direction of W. W. Harris, the employees include carpenters, truck drivers and plumbers. Besides running the campus warehouses and transporting supplies, the physical plant's staff is responsible for heating the dormitories and academic buildings. On a snowy day the University's furnaces consume as much as 90 tons of coal. Through the plant's office go all orders for devices to improve the outward aspect of the University, so assisting in the physical growth of Kent.

Organizations

With an awareness that education is not limited to studies, the student body takes an increasingly active part in creating a rich extra-curricular atmosphere. Making full use of campus organizations, students give generously of their time and effort. The pulse of such activity has quickened as the number of organizations has grown from 51 in 1944, when President Bowman was new on the campus, to 140 at present. From athletic clubs to Greek-letter honoraries, these interest groups and professional societies serve to expand the learning process. Aware of this potential, the wise student participates in campus activities that can make the University an experience in personal growth, as well as in learning.

Student Council

A gavel raps as the secretary reads, "The meeting was called to order at 4:10 p.m. in Studio A of the SAC." So begins another weekly meeting of Student Council. The 45 members of the governing agency act as the student voice to the Administration while aiming at better student-Administration relations. Members are chosen in a general campus election according to their class standing. They must pass a test on parliamentary procedure before taking office. Representatives from Panhellenic Council, Interfraternity Council, Men's Student Association, Associated Women Students and the residence halls have a voice at meetings. Student Council selects members to serve on various administrative committees on campus.

Social Committee

In 1970, what will you remember most about Kent State? Some might picture a favorite professor; others might recall the residence hall food. But most will think back with relish to those Homecomings and Campus Days which made the institution more than a place of learning. The smooth functioning of these memorable events is the responsibility of Social Committee. The committee attends to the many details connected with planning social events and enforces the University's Social Code. The committee of eight undergraduates and five faculty members oversees the judging of queens, floats and displays and the awarding of trophies. It is its job to select bands for the dances and to sponsor University concerts. Regulations for off-campus student functions come from Social Committee as administrator of the Social Code. Individuals are appointed to the group by Student Council, Interfraternity Council, Paphellenic Council, Associated Women Students and the Men's Student Association. There are also two members at large and a chairman.

Presenting such film personalities through the Weekend Flicks is one way SAB strives to provide activities to relieve Kent from the weekend status of a "suitcase school." SAB's 12 board members plan a comprehensive social program including both classic and popular movies, bridge lessons, exhibits and lectures. TGIF dances are given weekly in the SAC. SAB was started as a temporary committee of Student Council in 1962 and became a presidential committee of the council last fall. SAB operates through student fees.

AWS

Mothers of University women go coed each spring when the Associated Women Students holds its annual Mothers Weekend. AWS is responsible for seeing that the "girls" are chaperoned by their daughters to teas, lectures and the Penny Carnival. All women students are members of AWS, a medium by which the physical, mental and spiritual tenets of the University are promoted. AWS maintains high standards for women and through its annual Senior Women's Banquet and the Presidents' Banquet, co-sponsored with MSA, recognition is given to campus leaders. AWS plans the New Faculty Tea and the Rebellion Ball and, with MSA, plans Pork Barrel. The organization sent 45 delegates to the Intercollegiate AWS State Day last year at Denison University.

MSA

One of the "big three" governing agencies on campus, with Student Council and Associated Women Students, is the Men's Student Association. Traditionally MSA is responsible for Freshman Preview, Dad's Day, Pork Barrel, Presidents' Banquet and Senior Men's Banquet. In sponsoring these events, the organization's purpose is to promote student leadership and service while uniting men in social activities. MSA's 26-member executive board is the governing body for all University men. Elected and appointed officers form this board along with the vice presidents of Inter-Hall Council, Interfraternity Council and Men's Off-Campus Residents Association and representatives from halls, fraternities, classes and off-campus housing. Recently MSA organized a judicial board which hears appeals from decisions of student judiciaries.

Initially established to assist the 18 social fraternities on the KSU campus in their rushing programs, Interfraternity Council, better known as IFC, has now grown to a position where its activities entail all facets of male Greek life. Annually the group sponsors Greek Week, Top Hop Weekend and Greek-faculty teas. IFC strives to promote the social, cultural and intellectual interests of the Greek system while acting as the governmental body of the social fraternities. Through IFC the fraternities on campus act as a collective unit, joining together to sponsor various community and university projects throughout the year. Interfraternity Council also attempts the maintenance of an academic atmosphere among the fraternities by the presentation of an annual Scholarship Trophy which is awarded to the chapter having the highest scholastic standing. New this year has been the formation of a Presidents' Council, composed of chapter leaders, which investigates the occurrence of stagnancy within the fraternal system and presents suggested remedies to IFC.

Panhellenic

What's the rush? As the coordinator of rushing, pledging and initiation for Kent's eight sororities, Panhellenic Council answers this question. Through its rush handbook, It's All Greek To Me, Panhellenic informs prospective Greeks of the women's sorority system on campus. And for those already in a sorority, the Council fosters a high-plane Greek life. Through various committees, it aims to further sound scholarship, to be a forum for discussion of questions of interest to the college and fraternity world and to maintain Greek membership standards. Last March the organization launched Junior Panhellenic, composed of pledges from all the sororities. The senior group works closely with Interfraternity Council in coordinating social activities and sponsors many recreational events including intramural sports and a picnic.

Kent Stater

Familiar black and white pages of the Daily Kent Stater took on a "new look" in 1962 with an experiment in color. Brightening its eight-page Homecoming issue was the campus newspaper's first color photograph. As an experimental lab for journalism majors and minors, the Stater is a newspaper of, by and for the students. The publication's primary goal is to report all the activities in which the student population participates and to interpret the news in the most responsible way. It functions as a student forum, provides necessary information concerning campus activities, obtains student and faculty reactions to current topics and international affairs and reports on college life in general. The paper's code can be best summed up by the large sign in its Merrill Hall office, "Nothing Short of Right is Right."

Chestnut Burr

Since its inception almost 50 years ago, the Chestnut Burr has been gradually transformed from a 79-page memory book to the more than 300-page volume seen today. In 1914, the first Burr was compiled by the Walden Dramatic Club and presented to an all-woman senior class as a memoir of the founding year of Kent State Normal from a school which had its formal beginning in 1910. Now the yearbook serves a more vital function as a practical laboratory for journalism students. It is the hope of the 1963 Chestnut Burr staff that the work they have done on the book will not only benefit them but serve as a record of the school year for the campus.

Public Affairs

Protecting and projecting the image of Kent State to local, state and national communications media is the job of the Office of Public Affairs. Under the direction of Dr. George C. Betts, the Public Affairs departments include the News Bureau, managed by James Bruss; an athletic information service; and the Office of the University Editor, managed by Julia Waida. With six full-time staff members and eight student employees, the Office of Public Affairs maintains contacts with the mass media and presents the many phases of Kent's operations which appear before the public eye. In addition to numerous publications, the office edits "The Alumnus," written by Gerald Hayes, alumni secretary. To add to the efficiency of public relations the office recently acquired a new photography studio and modernized darkroom facilities. It looks forward to the day when it will have direct press wire contacts with area and national newspapers, radio and television stations.

WKSU-FM

Frequency of 89.7, a 1,000-watt transmitter, 7.5 kilowatts of power and a 50-mile broadcasting radius combine in WKSU Radio, FM. Kent's radio station is completely student operated under the supervision of Prof. J. C. Weiser. To augment the staff, various faculty members have programmed lectures and classes on their fields of interest. Relying on the resources of the University as much as possible, the station presents "The Women's World," a regular feature given by a home economics major, and "News in Depth," a student analysis of one or two important news stories of the week. WKSU broadcasts also inform the surrounding communities of activities on campus. In addition to programs designed to give information on local, national and international problems, the station offers three serious musical broadcasts each day. The radio station, which was off the air from May, 1960, until September, 1962, plans to go AM for campus use this year.

Cardinal Key

The women in white on Campus Day are members of Cardinal Key who traditionally march in the opening procession of this annual event. A national women's honor society, Cardinal Key recognizes coeds outstanding in campus activities. With membership limited to 25, the honorary is guided by the precepts of scholarship, character, leadership and service. Juniors and seniors with a grade point average above the all-University women's average may petition to enter the group. Selected coeds carry large red keys to signify their pledgship. Cardinal Key co-sponsors Penny Carnival, ushers for graduation and presents scholarships to deserving women students. Annually the organization pays tribute to an outstanding senior woman with its Womanhood Award. Prof. Dorcas Anderson advises the honorary.

The social register of the campus, the student directory, is distributed annually by members of Blue Key, men's activities recognition organization. In addition to distributing more than 1500 directories this year, the honorary offered scholarships to deserving men students as a service project. Established in 1924 at the University of Florida, the national collegiate honor society has 120 chapters throughout the country. Composed of 30 members, the local organization promotes service and scholarship among men.

Tau Beta Sigma

Able hosts to every band visiting the campus are 17 members of Tau Beta Sigma, band honorary. The organization assists with KSU's band trips, district solo and ensemble contests and the annual Band Day. Membership is open to students with a 2.25 accumulative average in University work who have maintained a 3.5 average in the band for two consecutive quarters. Tau Beta Sigma promotes the existence and welfare of university bands. The honorary received honorable mention in Songfest and sponsored a fall mixer, spring banquet and numerous coke parties for freshman women.

Kappa Omicron Phi

For future homemakers, a bulletin board in Kent Hall is kept up-to-date by members of Kappa Omicron Phi, home economics honorary. Kappa Omicron Phi recognizes high scholarship among home economics majors and minors. To join, women with a 2.5 accumulative University average must complete 12 hours of home economics courses with a 3.0 average. The honorary attempts to make members aware of new developments in their field while furthering their poise and their appreciation for the sanctity of the home. Kappa Omicron Phi sponsors a tea for freshman home economics majors in the fall quarter.

Pi Omega Pi

The Crutch, a grammar handbook that helps students in business English, is published by the 12 members of Pi Omega Pi, business education honorary. Open to majors and minors in the field, Pi Omega Pi promotes scholarship while encouraging the civic betterment of schools and high ethical standards in business and professional life. Membership requirements include a 2.5 overall accumulative average with a 3.0 in business and a 3.0 in four hours of education. Annually members prepare a panel discussion for freshmen in secretarial and business education.

Delta Omicron

From opera trips to Christmas tree trimmings, the members of Delta Omicron plan a program aimed at music appreciation. The international fraternity for music majors and minors is open to students with a 3.0 average in the field. It encourages performance among musicians. Members usher at concerts and recitals and plan programs for community groups. The local chapter, Delta Upsilon, recently received the rotating scholarship of the fraternity at its international conference.

Sigma Delta Chi

Training grounds for Stater editors describes one function of Sigma Delta Chi, professional society for men in journalism. Two fraternity members were recent directors of the campus newspaper. Sigma Delta Chi acquaints journalism majors and minors with professional life and advances the standards of the press by fostering a high ethical code. The organization plans the High School Press Clinic each spring. Those who wish to join must maintain a 2.75 average in journalism and a 2.3 overall accumulative average.

Theta Sigma Phi

Many deadline-harried editors may come from the ranks of Theta Sigma Phi, fraternity for women in journalism. Upon graduation members of the student chapter gain professional status in the national organization which unites women from all fields of communications. Installed on campus in 1951, Theta Sigma Phi introduces journalism majors and minors to professional life while recognizing high scholarship in the field. Women who wish to join must maintain a 2.5 overall accumulative average and a 3.0 average in journalism while actively participating in a University publication. Annually members plan their banquet, the Matrix Table, and numerous professional meetings where journalists from the area speak on the press.

Epsilon Pi Tau

Recognizing leadership in industrial arts and fostering research in this field is Epsilon Pi Tau, industrial arts honorary. Prospective members of the fraternity must have a 3.0 average in their major and are carefully screened. Epsilon Pi Tau, established at Kent in 1949, promotes skill and proficiency among its members. Advised by Prof. Delmar Olson, the group centers its interests around demonstrations, movies, field trips and lectures involving material related to its major field. Alumni of the honorary often speak at meetings. This year "Experimental Curriculum in Industrial Arts" was presented by a former KSU Epsilon Pi Tau member.

Phi Alpha Theta

Historically speaking, Phi Alpha Theta reigns at the top on the Kent State campus. The group is Kent's department-sponsored history honorary. Among its various activities, Phi Alpha Theta sponsors talks by outstanding historians from our own faculty and from other universities and invites specialists from other professions to listen in and help lead discussions. The main purpose of the organization, which was founded in 1938 as a local historical association, is to promote an interest in history. Members are required to maintain a 3.0 accumulative average in history and a 3.0 in two-thirds of all other courses. The group's advisor is Prof. Lawrence Kaplan.

Pi Sigma Alpha

The political scene certainly does not go unexamined here at Kent State. Promoting interest in statecraft as well as scholarship is the aim of the Alpha Omega chapter of Pi Sigma Alpha. Under the present direction of Prof. Oscar Ibele, the group, founded in 1950, strives to foster better scholarship in political science. Kent's chapter of Pi Sigma Alpha, one of over a hundred at various universities throughout the nation, frequently brings prominent speakers to the campus to discuss matters of public interest. The scholarly group requires for membership a 3.0 accumulative average in political science and a 2.6 overall average of majors in the field.

Phi Epsilon Kappa

The President of the United States has promoted a program of mental alertness and physical fitness, a program that is conscientiously followed by the men of Phi Epsilon Kappa. Founded in 1934, the health and physical education honorary has concentrated on evaluating the ideals, ethics and standards of those engaged in health and physical education. Being able to do many push-ups is not a prerequisite for membership, but being able to push up grades to a 3.0 average in your major and a 2.5 average overall is. Prospective members must be sophomores majoring or minoring in HPE. Guest speakers highlight the honorary's meetings, and its distinguished objectives highlight the organization.

Consider mathematics, the backbone of space-age technology. A typical meeting of the mathematics honorary, Pi Mu Epsilon, may involve a discussion of the fact that integral of e to the x equals the function of u to the n . The group finds such topics eliminate the need for a speaker. Those of us who manage to solve the equation might still find it difficult to qualify for membership in the honorary. Completion of the entire calculus series, a 3.0 accumulative average and a 3.25 average in mathematics qualify a math major for membership.

Panel of Americans

Race, Religion—these often avoided conversation topics excite the Panel of Americans. A nationwide discussion program in inter-group education, the Panel of Americans appears before both campus and community groups to discuss prejudice. Organized on campus four years ago, the panel consists of a Roman Catholic, a Negro, a Jew, a Protestant and a new American whose public speeches express their personal views on the racial and religious conflicts of the times. The only requirement for membership in the panel is an interest in furthering understanding among different peoples. Kent's 12 panel members, advised by Dean Glen Nygreen, are part of a national panel started at the University of California.

Golden K

With a flair for organization, Golden K adds much to the immeasurable "school spirit." The revival of a card section last fall at football games resulted from Golden K's planning. Each University student is automatically a member of the club, and representatives from campus organizations, dormitories and off-campus students attend bimonthly meetings. Operating with Student Council funds, Golden K sponsors the cheerleaders, pep rallies, all-University mixers and basketball half-time activities. By selling cushions at football games and mums during Homecoming, the group was able to aid the Flashettes, women's precision drill team, in getting pom poms. Golden K plans Rowboat Regatta.

Alpha Phi Omega

In our first week at Kent, we, perhaps unknowingly, became acquainted with the activities of Alpha Phi Omega. This service fraternity traditionally sponsors the New Student Program. Dedicated to "leadership, friendship, service," Alpha Phi Omega's members help recruit for the Blood Mobile and sponsor the annual quartet contest. Though officially delegated to ring the Victory Bell, they have not recently had opportunity to serve in this capacity. Community-wide, Alpha Phi Omega aids local boy scouts and provides food baskets for needy families at Christmas and Easter. One of 300 chapters throughout the country, the service group was started at Kent in 1941. The primary requirement for prospective members is that they must have once been boy scouts. Alpha Phi Omega's service to itself includes an annual recognition banquet, a semi-formal dance and picnic.

Thus Cardinal John Henry Newman, more than a century ago, stated the guiding precept of Newman Club, the center of Catholicism on campus. To continue the education of members a newly completed Newman Center provides college-level courses in religion and serves a social and recreational function. Director and chaplain is Father John J. Eastern Orthodox Fellowship

To appreciate and share a wonderfully rich religious and cultural heritage is of prime import to members of the Eastern Orthodox Fellowship. Advisor Michael Dubetz assists the group in planning the lectures, vesper services, panel discussions and teas which serve to promote understanding of the Orthodox faith. Once each quarter members assist in performing the Divine Liturgy. Social activities are not ignored as numerous hayrides, picnics and coffee hours will testify. Organized and established on Kent's campus in 1955, the group continues to be of service to school and community. Together, the 25 members attend the Orthodox churches in Akron.

Methodism on the University campus is represented by the Wesley Foundation, a social-cultural-religious organization formed 25 years ago. Open to KSU's 1500 Methodist preference students and to those of other denominations, Wesley, under the direction of Rev. A. Duane Frayer, seeks to cultivate Christian Fellowship and to provide religious training for its members. Next year Wesley looks forward to the opening of a Student Center, featuring a 12-sided chapel, which will be part of the new Kent Methodist Church on East Main Street. Wesley's activities include Sunday cost suppers, forums, Wednesday chapel, religious discussion groups, Bible classes and coffee hours. This year two weekend retreats were undertaken at Camp Asbury, near Hiram.

First-place winner in Songfest for Independent Women last spring, the 80-member organization has been on campus 15 years. Membership is open to all Methodist preference students who must go through a pledge period. Working under the motto, "Every Methodist woman in the university world today, a leader in the church of tomorrow," the chapter is part of a national group begun at the University of Kansas in 1916. Among its activities are an annual "Meal in the Upper Room" Tenebrae service, baby sitting for Kent Methodist Church members and entertainment for the Portage County Old Folks Home. Recently Kappa Phi won the Le Suerd Cup for most improved chapter in the nation.

Previewing what is to come.

Sigma Theta Epsilon

In an intensive pursuit of growth in mind and spirit, Sigma Theta Epsilon, men's Methodist service organization, aims at fellowship, leadership, training and service in the religion. Membership requirements involve a pledge period for Methodist preference students. The group's ultimate goal is to acquaint Methodist men with the history, activities and purpose of the church. Organized in 1925 at Iowa State University, Sigma Theta Epsilon came to Kent in 1949. Its members usher at the Methodist church and plan a Thanksgiving service there with the women's service group, Kappa Phi. Proceeds from the service go for a Thanksgiving dinner for a needy Kent family. Annual events include a Founder's Day banquet and dance. In cooperation with Kappa Phi and Wesley Foundation, the group sponsors hayrides.

Hillel

To provide a comprehensive program fulfilling the religious, social and cultural needs of the members of Jewish faith, while striving to gain a greater mutual understanding among members and with members of other religious denominations, is a task of no mean proportions. To this end Hillel is dedicated. Knowledge of the various faiths is a prime factor in fostering a mutual respect for religious beliefs of others, and Hillel sponsors Friday services, lectures, discussions and movies to aid in this capacity. However, knowledge of oneself is necessary before it can be imparted to another. Hillel seeks to instill in its members regard for their rich and ancient religious and cultural heritage. Advised by Emanuel Mandel, Hillel records the highest attendance percentage-wise of any other religious group on campus.

Gamma Delta

Knowledge and Service are the ideals of Gamma Delta, national Lutheran student association. In its ninth year on campus, Gamma Delta aims to foster religious knowledge through Bible study, the spread of a scriptural philosophy of life and the training of members for Christian service. Membership is open to any interested student who accepts the tenets of the Gamma Delta Constitution. The organization sponsors square dances, films, hayrides and dinners. Services of the 30-member group include singing in the Lutheran Church choir and painting the chapel basement. Gamma Delta annually participates in the Northeastern Gamma Delta Convention, regional retreat and winter camp.

Christian Science

Opening a new year under a new director, the Christian Science Organization is dedicated to the principles of its mother church. Prof. Charles Keith this year succeeds Prof. Mona Fletcher, founder of the organization in 1948 and its sponsor for 14 years. Attempting to unite students in closer Christian fellowship, the group welcomes and encourages those beginning their study of Christian Science and offers them an opportunity to learn the truths of Christian Science as taught in the Bible and in Mary Baker Eddy's book, Science and Health, with Key to the Scriptures. Each year, the organization sponsors a public lecture by a member of the Board of Lectureship of the Mother Church, Boston.

IVCF

Christian growth, Christian outreach and Christian responsibility are the main goals of the Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship, an international religious organization. IVCF members aim to learn of the Christian life and of brotherhood among men through prayer, Bible study and social activities. Each year the group participates in conferences held at Camp Muskingum. Other events are summer camps and an International Student Missionary Convention with chapters attending from the entire country.

Chemical Society

In name only, the Kent State University Chapter of Student Affiliates of the American Chemical Society is the largest organization on campus. More commonly known as SAACS, the society installed in 1950, has a membership of 30. An interest in chemistry is the only requirement for local membership. SAACS affords an opportunity for students of similar interest to become better acquainted while taking part in professional association and gaining experience in presenting scientific material before audiences.

Industrial Arts

One campus organization has the distinction of being part of the federal government. The former Kent State Industrial Arts Club came under jurisdiction of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Washington, D.C., last spring when it voted to affiliate with the American Industrial Arts Association in this government agency. The new student chapter of AIAA acquaints industrial arts majors and minors in the College of Education with subjects related to their field of interest. Panel discussions help students with problems concerning industrial arts teacher education. Annual social activities of the group include a Christmas party, pancake supper and banquet.

Some future leaders of American industry may well come from among the 40 students who compose the Society for the Advancement of Management. Dedicated to fostering an early awareness of the problems, policies and methods of industry and management, the group is open to sophomores, juniors and seniors who desire preparation for a business career. Among the professional organization's benefits are a year's subscription to the Advanced Management - Office Executive magazine, field trips to area industries, speeches by prominent men in management and the annual SAM banquet. Under the guidance of Prof. Joseph Schwitter, the group dedicates itself to the promotion and advancement of the art and science of management.

Phi Gamma Nu

Attention, male business majors: Phi Gamma Nu serves the businessmen of tomorrow by preparing efficient future secretaries now. An honorary for women in office administration and business education, Phi Gamma Nu develops within members pride in maintaining high professional and personal standards. A coed with a 2.7 accumulative average who has completed 60 hours of University work with nine hours in commerce is qualified for membership in the organization, founded on campus in 1951. A national service project of Phi Gamma Nu provides portable typewriters for use of veterans hospital patients. Advisor Prof. Louis Wheeler coordinates the activities of the 19 members.

Aerospace Sciences

Now building a satellite tracking station on campus, the Institute of Aerospace Sciences was formed to further interest in aerospace by providing a gathering place for interested members and by distributing information on the subject. It maintains a technical library and provides films and these topics on aerospace science. The Kent chapter meets monthly with the Cleveland-Akron section of IAS. Chartered by the national organization, IAS sent representatives to the national convention in Chicago last October. IAS presents two awards to members: a lecturer's award and an award for academic achievement. Membership, now 30, is open to majors in aerospace technology, mathematics, physics or life sciences.

Laurels

If leadership and character are among your qualities as a junior woman, look to Laurels, senior women's honorary. Through service activities, such as sponsoring the award of the President's Medal for the graduate with the highest accumulative average, Laurels aims to promote: a feeling of loyalty to the University. Junior women with a minimum accumulative average of 3.01 are recommended for membership in the group by faculty members and are tapped on Honors Day each spring. Started in 1955 as a local honorary, "Duerna," and renamed in 1956, Laurels hopes to affiliate with Mortar Board, national honorary. To advance the spirit of service and fellowship among Kent women, Laurels ushers for Honors Day, Commencement and plays and obtains the speaker for the Associated Women Students' Presidents Banquet. High standards of scholarship are encouraged by the group through its selection of an outstanding sophomore woman and sponsorship of a reception for students in the Honors Program. Members sell corsages for Mothers Weekend.

READERS

Putting aims of Kappa Delta Pi into practice.

Reading, writing and 'rithmetic form the three R's uppermost in the minds of members of Kappa Delta Pi, national honor society in education. Persons who exhibit commendable personal qualities, worthy educational ideals and sound scholarship are invited to belong to the honorary. Juniors and seniors in the College of Education who have maintained a 3.0 accumulative average and who have completed seven or more hours of education courses are eligible for membership in the group. Kappa Delta Pi strives to encourage high professional, intellectual and personal standards and to recognize outstanding contributions to education. Annually the honorary awards the Amos T. Herr Scholarship to an outstanding senior in the College of Education who demonstrates interest in teaching. Each year Kappa Delta Pi brings to the campus an outstanding figure in the teaching field to speak at its Educational Leadership Day banquet. Prof. Glenn Maynard and Prof. John Durance advise Kappa Delta Pi.

Delta Psi Kappa

To promote professional attitudes among women of high scholarship in the health, physical education and recreation fields, Delta Psi Kappa was established on campus in 1950. The professional HPE honorary requires members to maintain a 3.0 accumulative average in physical education or recreation and a 2.5 average overall. The 20 women of Delta Psi Kappa strive to be of service to the HPE department and to the University. Members assist in departmental activities and sponsor the Manners for Majors program, a party for graduating members and a mother-faculty tea during Mothers Weekend. The local Alpha Omicron chapter holds one professional meeting each quarter.

Members of the organization learn of the professional and intellectual aspects of the health and physical education field, along with exercising their muscles. Under the guidance of advisors Prof. Delores Peter and Prof. Ronald Bos, the 100 HPE Club members carry on a program to stimulate interest in the profession for mental and social benefits. This year's activities included a fall fun night and splash party, a Christmas party, a spring camping weekend and the annual HPE banquet. Membership in the organization is open to majors and minors in physical education, recreation and health education.

Scale model buildings fill Van Deusen gallery each spring when the student chapter of the American Institute of Architects presents its annual display of projects. AIA was established on campus in 1955 to provide a transition from student standing to the professional standing of an architect. Members of AIA are architecture majors who have completed 16 hours of University work. AIA sends delegates to the organization's national convention, sponsors conferences on campus featuring guest speakers and encourages original projects from members. An annual event of the group is its summer banquet. Prof. Joseph Morbito advises AIA members.

Known on campus as the Kindergarten Club in the 1920's, the Association of Childhood Education has "grown up" into an internationally affiliated education organization. The 150 members are majors in elementary, special or early childhood education who aim to raise the standards of teacher preparation. Informing the public of children's needs, ACE shows how the school program must be adjusted to meet these needs. Annually members hold a Christmas Party for children and sponsor an open house tea.

If you answer "Yes" to the frequently asked question, "Are you an education major?", the Student Education Association is the group for you. Membership is open to anyone in the College of Education. The organization aims to promote leadership, to spread understanding of teaching as a career and to encourage contact with others in the field by participating in professional activities at local, state and national levels. The Kent SEA chapter is affiliated with both the Ohio and the National Education Associations, and each member receives the monthly journals of these organizations. SEA's various campus and community services include High School Day, an attempt to show high school Future Teacher Associations what college will be like, particularly in the field of teacher training.

First place in the Regimental Drill Meet last year is one of many honors won by Company K, First Regiment of Pershing Rifles. Over a four-year period, Company K has won 20 drill trophies at meets throughout the country. Pershing Rifles, largest United States military fraternity, was founded in 1894 by General John J. Pershing to uphold the highest ideals of army organization. It aims to instill in Army ROTC cadets discipline, sense of duty and good officer traits. The organization is composed of 52 outstanding ROTC members who must go through an 11-week pledge period. Members provide the flag raising detail at home football games and act as ushers in the stands. Social activities include the Pershing Rifles Annual Initiation Dance and the Military Ball. Company K chose Brenda Turlington and Paula Amato as this year's honorary sponsors.

ARNOLD AIR SOCIETY joined with the Kent Welfare Department last spring in renovating a building to be used as a recreation center for underprivileged children. Besides serving the community, the society's 23 members sponsor activities ranging from the Military Ball to hayrides and splash parties. A professional and social organization of Air Force ROTC cadets who wish to further their military knowledge and to interest the campus in air and space power, the society received the best squadron award for this area in 1962. Cadets with a 2.5 accumulative average and a 3.0 in air science are eligible for membership.

GOLDEN EAGLES. A gold cord on the shoulder of an AFROTC cadet signifies that he is a member of Golden Eagles, the AFROTC rifle team. Founded in 1960 for men interested in marksmanship, Golden Eagles schedules shooting matches throughout the year. Cadets who gain active status in the group after a one-quarter pledge period are awarded their gold cords.

SILVER EAGLES. Most recent honor of Silver Eagles, AFROTC precision drill team, is first place in the Ohio State Drill Meet last May. Membership in the marching group is open to cadets who possess high military bearing and perseverance. Besides marching in community parades, on ROTC Day and Memorial Day and at local basketball games, the group holds social gatherings with Angel Flight.

ANGEL FLIGHT. Thirty-six females invade Kent's military world to add a touch of beauty to the Air Force ROTC. Angel Flight, organized in 1960 as an auxiliary of Arnold Air Society, is the official hostess group of the campus. Its military tactics include marching in school parades and promoting the Army-Air Force basketball game winter quarter. Besides assisting the air society in its functions, Angel Flight sponsors a Mothers' Weekend tea and participates in national flight conclaves.

Scabbard and Blade

Scabbard and Blade, national honorary open to junior and senior men enrolled in military science, encourages the formation of quality army officers. Founded in 1904 at the University of Wisconsin, Scabbard and Blade was chartered at Kent in 1949 as M Company, Eighth Regiment. Members are advanced cadets of excellent military standing in Army ROTC who go through a pledge period and pass a written examination. Social activities include a dance each quarter. Scabbard and Blade provides the saber arch for the Homecoming game and dance, ROTC Day game and Military Ball. It also participates in a national convention every two years. Joan McKenzie is sponsor for the honorary's 31 members.

Merrymen

Smorgasbord is for singing, not eating. At least "The Merrymen Sing Smorgasbord," a record cut by the male chorus, presents a smorgasbord of 14 tunes from jazz to calypso. The chorus of 37 students from the men's residence halls endeavors to provide the campus and community with versatile singing. Since its organization in 1957, the glee club has performed before more than 25,000 people. Members are volunteers who have passed an audition and who give two hours a week to practice. Annually the group presents a Christmas and a spring concert in addition to appearing in Pork Barrel. They have entertained over the radio and at civic gatherings which ranged from bowling banquets to women's club meetings. When the men are not busy with concerts, they serenade the girls' residence halls.

A CAPPELLA CHOIR is one of the University's best public relations media. The 51 voice choir represents the campus in concerts throughout the state and has received wide acclaim for its professional renditions. Under the direction of Prof. Robert H. Foulkes, A Cappella Choir familiarizes its members with religious classics by master composers.

MADRIGALS. A small, highly selective organization, the Madrigal Singers are advanced students from the A Cappella Choir. The 12 members accompany the choir on concert tours to the surrounding communities and perform in the "Messiah" with Oratorio Guild each Christmas.

MEN'S GLEE CLUB, organized in 1957 by Prof. John White, tries to build an appreciation for finer music and to develop the talents of its members. The chorus traditionally sings the Alma Mater at the opening of Campus Day Songfest each spring. The group appears at various high schools during the year and presents an annual spring concert for the University. Directed by Prof. Frank S. Stillings, it has 41 members.

WOMEN'S CHORUS. Christmas carols joyfully break the library silence each December when the University's Women's Chorus presents its annual program in the first-floor lounge. The glee club performs both sacred and secular music under the direction of Prof. Ralph E. Hartzell. In addition to the library concert, the group appears in other events throughout the year. In existence since the founding of the School of Music, the Chorus has as its purpose the vocal training of members.

WRA

A beautiful contribution to the sports' scene at Kent is the feminine intercollegiate field hockey team, sponsored by the Women's Recreation Association. WRA promotes both the intercollegiate and intramural sports program for women students through clubs in all phases of athletics. WRA offers planned intercollegiate activities in field hockey, volleyball, basketball, swimming, tennis, gymnastics and dance. Intramural competition includes bowling, softball and table tennis. Advised by Prof. Fay Biles, the organization boasts the membership of all University women. It is governed by a 50-member board.

English Club

"A bit of all right," the 100 English Club members term their organization. This literary group on campus recognizes harmonious student-faculty relationships to be one of the most valuable aspects of college life. The English Club encourages these relationships and in doing so strives to stimulate interest in the English language through speakers and discussions on poetry, literature and drama. The English Club, founded at the University in 1946, welcomes to its membership any student with a sincere interest in this field.

University Theatre

interest

Centering on the philosophy that "the play's the thing . . .," the University Theatre makes participation in the theatre arts available to all students. Directed by G. Harry Wright, UT provides opportunities for active participation in theatre with the aim of adding practical experience to theoretical instruction. Founded in 1931 by Prof. E. Turner Stump, the organization now presents plays in a theatre named for him. Since its inception, the University Theatre has produced over 225 full-length plays and hundreds of one-acts. The Theatre is a Group Member of the American National Theatre and Academy and is represented at its annual meeting in New York each winter. Faculty staff members who participate in UT activities are members of the American Educational Theatre Association.

Alpha Psi Omega

Alpha Psi Omega, dramatics honorary, has the distinction of being the first national honorary on the University campus. Chartered in 1929, the local chapter seeks to promote excellence in dramatic arts and is open to those who earn 100 points by participation in acting or backstage work in University Theatre productions. The group recognizes outstanding individuals in University Theatre activities at an annual awards banquet. Under the advisorship of Prof. William H. Zuchero, the honorary serves both a social and a service function for budding actors, actresses and workers in all phases of the dramatic arts.

MARKSMEN
Loudest group on campus.

Rifle Club

One of the loudest groups on campus is the Kent State Rifle and Pistol Club. Founded in the fall of 1961, the group makes its first appearance in the Chestnut Burr this year. Under the advisership of Sgt. James Arnold, Air Force ROTC, the club strives to promote an understanding of firearms, as well as to develop a skill in the use of them. These sharpshooters conduct separate weekly classes and matches for both rifle and pistol training. Besides holding monthly joint meetings, the forty members sponsor a special program or trip each month. The Rifle and Pistol Club has no strict membership requirements, but those who wish to join must be students at Kent State.

Flasherettes

"Eighty attractive legs keeping time to a march beat" describes the Flasherettes, women's precision drill team. Organized in 1960 under the sponsorship of Golden K, the Flasherettes perform at football and basketball half-time breaks and in before-game parades. Joined to promote school spirit, the Flasherettes permit university women to increase their sense of citizenship, leadership and sportsmanship. Membership in the group is based on talent displayed by the individual during tryouts. Grade requirements are a 2.0 accumulative average and a 2.0 previous quarter. The Flasherettes, with Golden K and the cheerleaders, assist in supporting the Student Activities Board.

Sailing Club

Acquisition of two new sailboats, thereby tripling their flotilla, is the latest achievement of the members of the Kent State University Sailing Club. Organized in April, 1962, the club has enjoyed phenomenal growth while initiating its members in the intricacies of sailing. Awards of first-place in the Western Reserve Academy Regatta and of second-place in the Interlake Yacht Sailing Association Annual Regatta testify to the skill of the 58 members. When not sailing, the group attends various regattas throughout the Midwest and holds armchair regattas, which are strictly social. Membership in the Sailing Club is third largest in the Midwest Collegiate Sailing Association.

Ukrainian Club

Meddent Club

"Dobry den!" "Good day!" is the greeting bound to be heard at a meeting of Kent's only nationality organization—the Ukrainian Club. Its members are students of Ukrainian descent who wish to keep alive the culture and customs of their nationality. Under the advisorship of Prof. Russell Iwanчук, mathematics, the group participated in the annual International Festival with national dances and a display. In existence since 1955, the group sponsored a concert by the Ukrainian male chorus, Dnipro, on campus last year.

A guarantee against the hypocritical practice of the Hippocratic Oath lies in early membership in the Meddent Club. Members include pre-medical, pre-dental, pre-nursing, medical technology and pre-pharmacy students. Started in 1955, Meddents binds together students of similar interest. Meddents provides films and lectures by professionals at its bi-monthly meetings to stimulate an appreciation of the importance of pre-medical education. Included in the program are frequent field trips to medical and dental schools.

Kent Internationals

The capable hand of the Kent Internationals reaches out to welcome the foreign students who come to Kent each year. This organization is composed of foreign and American students interested in introducing the newcomers to our country and our customs. And through the Internationals, the foreign students are afforded opportunities to present their way of life. Through co-sponsorship of an International Festival each spring and through visits by members to various civic, church and social groups in the area, the organization founded in 1958 fosters better understanding between foreign students, the campus and community. In addition to biweekly meetings and social programs, the Internationals annually hold the Autumn and the Embassy balls. Any enrolled student is eligible for membership.

Some American males' middle-age spreads might one day be attributed to the culinary arts of members of the Home Economics Club. Among their varied activities, women in the Home Ec Club prepare an annual Christmas dinner and Buddy Picnic for freshmen. The purpose of the organization is to promote and to interpret the Ohio Home Economics Association and the American Home Economics program to its 55 members. These girls maintain the Home Ec Library and sell football programs at the Flashes' contests. Representatives attend the Ohio Home Economics Association meeting every spring.

Residence Halls

From the weathered walls of Lowry Hall to the unfinished stories of the U-shape dormitories, we find a place for students to call their own during their stay at KSU. The 11 residence halls seek an atmosphere that will capture the warmth of home for 3,800 inhabitants. By offering cultural and social activities, the halls afford centers of relaxation away from the world of the classroom, as well as serve the essential function of being places of study. Each dwelling is the natural scene of the problems, joys and hopes in the life of each student as he prepares for the future. Each hall, it seems to us, admirably succeeds in being a center of warmth and security for hundreds who dwell within.

Lowry Hall

Founded in 1912 as Kent's first residence hall, Lowry celebrated its semicentennial this fall with a Homecoming tea, honoring both KSU alumni and former Lowry residents. Lowry's proximity to Merrill Hall, especially on the sprawling campus, is a wonderful thing. Its cafeteria affords residents the privilege of lulling over a 7:50 a.m. cups of coffee and of still being on time for 8 o'clock classes. The 140 coed residents can take pride in the name of Lowry. The hall was named for James H. Lowry who introduced the legislative bill in the Ohio Senate that provided for the establishment of the University. The residence is unique in its closing hours' honors system—girls are trusted to sign in on time without the watchful eyes of counselors and to report their own lateness. This spring Lowry took second place in Songfest for Independent Women.

It isn't every coed living on campus who has 32 roommates. But each woman in Moulton Hall's "Pipe Alley" has this privilege. In the residence hall's basement, "Pipe Alley" houses the overflow of coeds who request to live on campus fall quarter. These temporary living facilities substitute for single and triple rooms, and girls in the basement will eventually be relocated. A brighter side of the residence hall (something not to be sneezed at) is the second-place trophy in Women's Residence Hall Division for Homecoming displays for Little Lulu and a Kleenex box, "One Touch-down up Pops Another." Whether it will be the plumbing or Lulu that will be remembered most by residents, both will add to Moulton's character, a character that has been developed since 1917.

Engleman Hall

The 242 University women who live in Engleman Hall, named for the former president of Kent, keep active throughout the year with hall parties, dances, picnics, fireside chats, open house and discussions. Under the guidance of resident counselor Ruth Williamson, the hall seeks to provide an atmosphere conducive both to study and relaxation. This year Engleman women displayed their humanitarian instincts with the adoption of an Italian foster child, 12-year-old Giancolo Tucci. Annually the dormitory has a dance at the Cleveland Boys' Industrial School, Hudson. Lending their feminine touch, the women of Engleman decorated the gyms for this year's Homecoming Dance.

Built in 1955, it is the oldest of the "new" residence halls at Kent. Hall activities are geared to promoting the physical, mental, social and spiritual tenets of the University. Under the guidance of counselor Audre Durbin, Terrace girls undertake a variety of activities. Included in the year's program were open houses, mixers and a Christmas tea to which faculty was invited. An Apple Polisher Social was recently initiated as an informal meeting of students with faculty. The residents plan a Christmas party for welfare children and attend several social functions at the Cleveland Boys' Industrial School, Hudson. Terrace had the largest representation at the Intercollegiate Associated Women Students State Day at Denison University.

Dunbar Hall

Slimmin', trimmin' exercise sessions highlight Dunbar Hall's agenda of activities. As part of its social education program, the hall sponsors knitting and bridge lessons in addition to speakers and cultural programs for the benefit of residents. Dunbar, named in honor of the University's first librarian, opened officially in 1959 to house men students and became a women's hall in 1961. Under the guidance of counselor Sandra Fee, the 374 residents keep busy through the year with mixers, an inter-dormitory formal and publication of the "Dunbar Dynamo," biweekly newspaper. Service projects include sending coeds to parties at Cleveland Boys' Industrial School and preparing a Christmas food basket for a needy family. Dunbar captured second-place awards for its Homecoming display and Campus Day float.

Prentice Hall

"Laboratory for Living" is the motto of Prentice Hall, residence of 372 women. And center of this lab is a dramatic aqua, purple and magenta lounge, favorite night-time studying place for residents. Opened in 1959, the dormitory is named for the University's first woman faculty member. Directed by counselor Barbara Cochran, Prentice attempts to provide the best surroundings for each coed's academic and social advancement. To this end, the hall sponsors a formal dance, mixers and "Prentice Post," hall newspaper. Service to the community includes preparing a Thanksgiving basket for a needy family and aiding at social functions of Cleveland Boys' Industrial School.

A crepe paper football hero in a giant rocking chair added another first-place trophy to Verder Hall's showcase this year. In addition to this "Rock the Rockets" display for the Kent vs. Toledo Homecoming game, Verder copped top honors for independent women in Campus Day float competition, Penny Carnival and Rowboat Regatta. The hall, named in honor of a former dean of women, strives to provide an atmosphere conducive to both social and academic development for 385 residents. Under the guidance of Mrs. Lucille Tritchler, counselor, Verder coeds combine their efforts in a 20-member chorus and the "Verder Highlites," hall newspaper.

Not only was Stopher the first men's residence hall erected at Kent, but this year it was top winner in Campus Day competition with its "Royal Barge of Siam" float. Opened in 1948 as President Bowman's second building project and named for a former registrar, Stopher is presently under the direction of counselor Dallas Bailey. Among the activities of the 285 residents are a winter formal and a Popeye Party. They also co-sponsored a party for underprivileged children with Lowry and Moulton halls. Stopher took second place for its Homecoming display, "Flashes Strike 'Em Down."

Johnson Hall

Top honors in Field Day last spring went to Johnson Hall, sponsor of this athletic event for the men's residences. Johnson's Field Day featured a shot-put contest where a 16-pound weight was held at arm's length until the holder's limb gave out. The dormitory, named "Stopher B" after its construction in 1956 and later renamed in honor of John T. Johnson, former dean and professor, sponsors a variety of social and intellectual activities throughout the year. In addition to a party for underprivileged children, Johnson recently sponsored the film "Red China—Outlaw" on campus. The men of Johnson won praise from University officials for a special year-end edition of the "Johnson Journal," hall newspaper. Led by resident counselor Clarke Maloney, the hall aims to achieve an atmosphere that will aid the development of male students.

Olson Hall

Hot sabakas, hot dogs Russian style, are on the bill of fare at Olson Hall's annual Hot Sabaka Hop. This informal eat-and-dance party, a hayride and mixers are included in the hall's social schedule. Named in honor of a former professor in the geography department, the dormitory was opened in 1961. Olson's 370 male residents, known as the Rebels, instituted a campaign to increase school spirit last year and sent a cheering section to the football games. In keeping with their nickname, the men publish a dormitory newspaper, the "Rebel Rouser." Olson is the only men's residence on campus to have a cafeteria-study hall which is controlled by a scholarship committee. To augment the study facilities, the hall is currently purchasing books for a library. During the integration crisis at the University of Mississippi, the hall's cultural committee invited professors to speak on the situation. Directed by counselor Edwin Smith, the men of Olson cooperated with the students of Stopher Hall in sponsoring a Christmas party for underprivileged children.

Lake Hall

A 22-day telephone conversation between Lake and Dunbar halls brought the world talkathon crown to Kent State last spring. To break 14-day and 21-day records set by Western Michigan University and California Polytechnical Institute respectively, a Lake man dropped a dime into one of the hall's pay phones and thus began a continuous period of gabbing with coeds in the women's hall. Many boy-girl friendships were rung up between phone partners who had signed up for half-hour stints of yakking. Lake Hall sponsors a variety of social activities that range from a western dance to a Christmas formal. Residents captured a first-place trophy for their Homecoming display and were second-place winners in the men's intramural football competition. The 370 men aid underprivileged children and publish a newspaper, the "Lake Leader."

MINGLERS
Enjoying council's activities.

Presidents' Round Table, a discussion meeting of student leaders with President Bowman, results from the initiative of Inter-Hall Council. The major function of the council is correlating the efforts of the four men's residence halls. It strives to provide a program of activities for men living on campus. With membership composed of the president and two representatives from Stopher, Johnson, Lake and Olson halls, the Council aids in creating an atmosphere conducive to scholarship throughout the men's dormitories. The group presented a Homecoming art show and, in cooperation with the women's residences, held dances throughout the year. The organization sponsors the Merry-men of Kent, glee club of men from the halls.

Inter-Hall Council

In June, 1947, the first national Greek organization reached Kent's campus. Chi Omega sorority became the first of local social groups to take on national affiliation, followed by 26 others in succeeding years. The faculty expressed approval of this national association at a meeting in May of that year and was warmly supported in its opinion by President Bowman, himself a Sigma Nu. Providing their members with a sense of identification and an opportunity for self-expression, the Greek-letter societies have become a potent force on campus. Sign of the integral role they play are plans for the purchase of a fraternity row, announced this year. Estimated cost of this seven-acre "dream row," adjacent to the campus, is 1.5 million dollars.

Alpha Xi Delta

A national organization on Kent's campus since 1947, Alpha Xi Delta Sorority has been active in all phases of collegiate life. The Xi's who wear the quill pin know that education is not just a book-learning process. They believe that athletics, social events and service to the community all contribute to the education of a college coed. Alpha Xi's showed their "muscle" by taking first place in the May Day Relays. The sorority contributes to Happy Day School, a local facility for the care and education of retarded children. In addition, it held a Founders' Day banquet, a spring Rose Formal, A Christmas party and a Memorial Day picnic. Despite Alpha Xi Delta's busy agenda, the girls placed first in scholarship among all sororities during the spring quarter.

Philanthropic projects are an acclaimed sidelight of Delta Zeta sorority. The coeds furnished a "Delta Zeta" room in the Speech and Music Center for the training of preschool deaf children. At Christmas time the DZ's held a party for all third graders in the Kent area. Their admission ticket was a "nearly-new" toy. The toys were turned over to the Kent Welfare Association, who in turn distributed the gifts to underprivileged children. These deeds earned the Kent State chapter the first-place trophy for philanthropy at the Delta Zeta's national convention. In addition to their philanthropic projects the DZ's have time for social events. The "sisters" highlighted an active year of teas, firesides and serenades with the annual Dream Girl Formal in the spring. In sorority competition Delta Zeta captured second place on Campus Day with its float, "Locks of Luck." Their rendition of "Happy Talk" from South Pacific won a third-place trophy in Songfest.

Chi Omega

First national sorority at Kent State was the 100th chapter of Chi Omega. The Chi O's, from their new house, a modern brick structure on Summit Street, join in all phases of University life. The 54 members have "sisters" in many of the women's honoraries, including Cardinal Key. Chi O's are active in Student Council, Angel Flight, Flasherettes and cheerleaders. Members also serve as ROTC sponsors and residence hall officers. As a service to the University the sorority offers a $25 social science prize and holds an all-University tea. As a service to the community they serenade shut-ins at the old folks' home. In social affairs the sisters hold a spring formal and a Chi Omega-Fiji Street Dance. In campus competition the group won a second place in the May Day Relays and splashed their way to a second-place finish in Row-boat Regatta.

Gamma Phi Beta

Gamma Phi Beta is the only women's Greek organization on campus with the title "sorority". The seven other Kent "sororities" are officially chartered as fraternities in their constitutions. The women of Gamma Phi Beta work actively with brother Greeks. The chapter co-sponsored an all-University dance with Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity and coordinated activities with Sigma Phi Epsilon for the Annual May Day Relays. Fall quarter the sorority house was transformed into a Japanese palace for the yearly Sayonara Party. Later the girls turned their home from the islands of Japan into an isle of the Bahamas for a Bimini Party, complete with Hawaiian orchids. Another fall event was the sorority's Founders' Day banquet. With spring quarter came the spring formal and an outdoor barbecue. Greek life is not all party for the Gamma Phi's though. Nationally the sorority concentrated its interests on child welfare by sponsoring summer camping for under-privileged children. Staffed by Gamma Phi's who volunteer their services, camps are maintained in Denver and Vancouver.

Panhellenic trophy for first place in scholarship went to Alpha Gamma Delta during the past school year. Besides maintaining high scholastic standards the chapter members represented the sorority at all campus competitions. The Alpha Gams won the All-Sports Trophy for 1961-62. Socially, the Alpha Gam top events were their winter and spring formals, an annual Christmas party at Mrs. Bowman's home and their annual hayride. Nationally, the sorority gave aid to cerebral palsy victims and a scholarship to physical therapists doing special work in that field. For the community the chapter sponsored a Christmas party for handicapped children at the University School. The "sisters" also worked with children at the Happy Day School.

Delta Gamma

Recipients of the sorority scholarship trophy for winter quarter were Delta Gamma members, the girls who wear the anchor pin. But the sorority is not only outstanding for scholarship; Delta Gamma's year-long philanthropic project is aiding the blind. "Sisters" volunteer time to read to blind students and assist a blind couple. Members of the local chapter, founded in 1947, brought numerous honors to their sorority last year. The Alpha Tau Omega White Rose queenship, the Miss Kent State title and Sweetheart of Delta Sigma Phi honor went to Delta Gamma. Two "sisters" are listed in Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities, two were tapped for Laurels and four belong to Cardinal Key.

Alpha Phi

Beta Omega chapter of Alpha Phi sorority has been a national chapter on the Kent Greek scene since 1948. The Phi's have taken awards in both scholastic and social events. They placed second in scholarship among sororities spring quarter. Annually the sorority co-sponsors the All-Greek Formal at Myers Lake with the fraternity, Sigma Nu. Pledges of Alpha Phi are presented during the dance. In the spring the Phi's placed first in Songfest with their rendition of "Inch Worm," and captured third place in Campus Day float competition with "Fogg's Folly." Alpha Phi has undertaken philanthropy projects: a Christmas party for underprivileged children, assistance at Akron Children's Home and donation of Easter favors to patients in Ravenna's hospital. Well-represented in queen contests, the Phi's had an attendant to the Campus Day queen and two attendants to the Rowboat Regatta queen.

POSSIBLE DUMMIES
Bridging the gap between weekends.

Little All-Greek Queen, Phi Kappa Theta Sweater Hop Queen and Phi Kappa Tau Playmate were individual honors of Alpha Chi Omega members last year. Since its institution as a national sorority in 1950, the chapter has originated many unique social events. A Christmas formal, staged in the newly-decorated sorority house, gave the sisters an opportunity to present their dates with stockings filled with "unusual" surprises. O.C.A. (Alpha Chi Omega) Day was a turnabout event for sorority pledges as they assumed the role of actives for a day. But the sorority's life is not all social. Alpha Chi Omega aided the Speech Clinic and assisted cerebral palsied children.

Delta Upsilon

CONVERSATIONALISTS

DU kitchen provides stimulating atmosphere.

Originating in 1922 as Kappa Mu Kappa local fraternity, Delta Upsilon became Kent's first national social fraternity in 1949. The chapter has had unequalled success in interfraternity athletics. It won the All-Sports Trophy for having accumulated the most points in competition. A first place in football, basketball and ping-pong and a second place in bowling were responsible for the championship. In other areas the DU's placed third in Songfest, and their humorous skit in Pork Barrel merited the runner-up position. The efforts of the "brothers" are not all directed towards activities of a social nature, however. Each quarter the fraternity and its pledges turn their attention to some local civic project in order that a favorable view of the fraternity system might be presented to the community. A large number of DU's were also active within the councils and honoraries on campus.

Kappa Alpha Psi

HORSEPLAY
Cutting up . . .

The nation's first Negro Greek-letter fraternity, Kappa Alpha Psi, came to Kent State in 1952. Strong nationally, with some 22,000 members, the fraternity has as its fundamental purpose, achievement. With this goal in mind, the "brothers" of Kappa Alpha Psi compete actively within Kent's fraternity system in both scholarship and athletics. During spring quarter intramurals the Kappas ran their way to three track victories. The chapter held the number-two position among fraternities in grade averages last fall.

Recent addition to the University's Greek system is Alpha Phi Alpha. Along with a well-rounded social program, the fraternity promoted service to the community. Alpha Phi Alpha has assisted in the "Books for Asia" drive, and the chapter participated in panel discussions in various high schools to inform graduating seniors about Greek life. The brothers of Alpha Phi Alpha emphasize scholarship and ranked high among fraternity groups in grade ratings. A Founders' Day formal highlighted the chapter's social events.

Sigma Nu

Founded and built upon the "honor of man," Sigma Nu has attempted to sustain this feeling in its social, athletic, service and academic functions. With their sister sorority, Alpha Phi, the "brothers" decorated the front campus for the Christmas holidays and co-sponsored the annual All-Greek Formal at Myers Lake where the pledges of Alpha Phi were serenaded by the men of Sigma Nu. Members held at least one house party each week during the year. The fraternity provided an added attraction for campus Greeks when the school year began with a party at their house topped off by a police-escorted caravan through the downtown area. The chapter completed its social calendar with the annual White Rose Formal in the spring. Sigma Nu won the annual tug-of-war contest at Rowboat Regatta last spring.

Alpha Epsilon Pi

Remodeling is getting to be a habit with Alpha Epsilon Pi fraternity. Last year the group completely refurbished the interior of its house on Lincoln Street, and this year it plans exterior renovation with aluminum siding. Displaying other domestic qualities, fraternity members invite a Kent professor to dinner at their house each week. The "brothers" of Alpha Epsilon Pi also keep active during the year with a variety of social events. Highlighting the social calendar this year was their annual train ride party. Members and dates chartered a train car from Kent to Youngstown, hired a band and danced in the Youngstown depot. This year's party had a wild West theme. AEPI also participates in intramural sports, Pork Barrel and Penny Carnival. Last summer the fraternity sent representatives to its national convention in Atlanta, Georgia. The organization was founded at New York University in 1913 and in 1949 was the third local fraternity on Kent's campus to gain national status.

Phi Kappa Tau

Located for ten years on Main Street, Phi Kappa Tau plans to make its new home on South Willow this spring. The local chapter was established at Kent in 1949. Phi Kappa Tau was well-represented within the campus system last year by its members. Phi Tau's held executive positions in Interfraternity Council and the Men's Student Association. Active in the fraternity intramural program, the group won trophies in softball and ping-pong. The fraternity's social events included a spring formal and a Hawaiian party. The selection of a Phi Tau Playmate was the climax of the Playboy Party in the fall. The local group sent representatives to the Phi Kappa Tau national convention in North Carolina last summer.

CULINARY MISHAP
"Thumbs up" still goes for cooking for yourself.

Phi Kappa Theta, national Catholic social fraternity, began the school year with its annual Phi Kap-Newman Club party where incoming freshmen had an opportunity to meet members of these two Catholic organizations. The fraternity's social calendar was filled with a variety of events. At its traditional Roman party the chapter's large gabled home on West Main was transformed with pre-Christian era decor for a night of revelry. A Christmas party highlighted fall quarter events. With winter came the annual sleigh ride. The Phi Kappa Theta Sweater Hop with its queen and a winter formal were other cold weather events. The Phi Kaps won first place in Rowboat Regatta and tied for first place in the May Day Relays. The group's Gold Cup Formal brought the schedule of activities to a close in the spring quarter.

Within a tightly knit brotherhood members of Delta Tau Delta strive for the attainment of goals beneficial to both the fraternity way of life and to non-Greek students. The Deltas have a status of being campus politicians and businessmen. Deltas may be found among the managing personnel of The Chestnut Burr, the Daily Kent Stater and Interfraternity Council. A majority of the chapter assisted in the New Student Program, orienting incoming freshmen. Delta Tau Delta has been an active participant in interfraternity sports. Also in the area of athletics, the chapter hosted a state-wide basketball tournament which it initiated. The tournament comprised all of the Delt houses in the state.

The Phi Sigs, while holding a high grade average, sponsored many novel theme parties during the year including a Roman party and a Monte Carlo party. The brothers of Phi Sigma Kappa, known for their red hearse, won many honors during the 1962-63 year. From the national chapter the fraternity received both a Manpower Award and a Scholarship Award, and the group was praised by the Kent Junior Chamber of Commerce for assisting in the JC's carnival. The Phi Sigs' Homecoming display earned a third-place trophy.

Highlight of an agenda of parties was a spring formal, the Stardust Ball. Other fetes were a casino party, night club party, beatnik party and the annual street dance in front of their house on University Drive. The Kappa Sig's participate annually in the "Books for Asia" drive. The fraternity has continually been above the campus all-men's grade average. In the spring quarter the group ranked sixth scholastically among all fraternities.

Turning "Hell" Week into "Help" Week earned the praises of Kent community officials for Alpha Tau Omega fraternity. The fraternity directed the actions of its winter pledge class toward a city service project. Along with community honors, the ATO's have also won campus honors. The ATO Campus Day float, "An Adventure Comes to Life," was judged best in its class. The ATO Homecoming house display also gained a first-place trophy. The fraternity has many outstanding members. An ATO was Apollo for Greek Week, and "brothers" participated on varsity athletic teams. The selection of a queen from new sorority pledges at its White Tea Rose Ball topped the chapter's social events.

Sigma Phi Epsilon

Packing crates and a moving van signaled the start of the school year for Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity. Fall quarter the Sig Eps moved their "house with the heart," so called because of the fraternity's heart emblem, from Summit Street to N. Lincoln. The local chapter actively participates in the functions of its national organization. Last summer it was host to a leadership seminar for Sig Eps from the Northeastern United States. The "brothers" also contributed to the national fund for the fraternity's children's camp in the Adirondack Mountains. Locally, the group took second place for its pie throwing booth at Penny Carnival last spring. Annual fraternity social activities include a playboy party, a roaring twenties party and a spring formal.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon

Sigma Alpha Epsilon mixes mourning with gaiety. For their annual Patti Murphy party fraternity members transform a mock funeral into a night of fun. Doing a take-off on an Irish wake, the SAE's choose a "brother" to be Patti Murphy and revel his "passing on" as their top spring quarter social event. But the SAE's are not unique only because of this social activity. They have distinguished themselves with top honors in many all-University events. In last spring's Campus Day the fraternity won a first place in Songfest and a third place in float competition. For their ball toss booth, the "brothers" took a first prize in Penny Carnival during Mothers Weekend. Members earned a second place in fraternity intramural sports. The organization is also active in community and national projects. As part of service to the city of Kent SAE recently painted the downtown comfort station. Members, participating in a program of the national organization, sent representatives to its national leadership school in Evanston, Illinois last summer. Sigma Alpha Epsilon was founded at the University of Alabama in 1856.

Collegiates

LEISURE TIME

Mosaic makes attractive background for informal moment.

TWISTIN' TIME

Background here is Collegiate party.

Kent's only local independent fraternity, the Collegiates, were continual contenders for intramural championships. This year the group captured the fraternity bowling crown. Inculcating the spirit of fraternal independence while promoting the idea of "The man first, the student second, and the Collegiate third," the men have shown their concern for others by sponsoring a foster child in Viet Nam. The Collegiates received a scholastic trophy for spring quarter. An annual Roman party, a gambling party and a spring formal were on the Collegiate social card.

Phi Delta Theta

REVERSE SITUATION
Entertaining four brothers.

Mock pledgings, house duties and Greek pins are "honors" for sweethearts of Phi Delta Theta during the fraternity's annual She-Delt Week. A national Phi Delt activity, She-Delt Week shows the girlfriends of "brothers" the fraternity way of life. For seven days the girls go through a mock hell week and perform the usual duties of Greek pledges. But after the period of house-cleaning and observing fraternity rules, the girls are honored at a dance, highlight of the week's activities. Another nationwide Phi Delt activity is Community Service Day, when each fraternity chapter plans improvement projects in its home city. The local chapter recently renovated a Girl Scout camp and cleaned streets of Kent as its part in the day of service. In addition, the fraternity also sent representatives to its national convention in Bedford Springs, Pennsylvania, last summer. Added to these national activities in the Phi Delt program are the all-Greek events at Kent. The fraternity rated tops scholastically fall quarter and was second in grade averages last spring. In intramural competition, members were second-place winners in volleyball and placed in football competition. The local chapter was founded in 1954 and is one of the six Greek organizations on campus that bought land for the fraternity row soon to go under construction near University School.

Phi Gamma Delta

Local chapter of Phi Gamma Delta gained prominence this year with the election of its faculty advisor to a national fraternity post. Faculty advisor Louis Mangels, director of student activities at Kent, was chosen as Phi Gamma Delta section chief last January. In this office Mangels has charge of fraternity affairs at Michigan, Michigan State, Western Reserve and Kent universities. But an outstanding advisor is not Phi Gamma Delta's only claim to fame. Fraternity members, known on campus as the Fijis, won second-place honors in Campus Day competition and intramurals. A Songfest trophy winner was the Fiji rendition of Eddystone Light, while a "bigger than life" model of Jules Verne's Phineus Fogg brought an award in the Campus Day float contest. The fraternity also took a second place in swimming competition among the Greeks. Phi Gamma Delta was founded at Jefferson College in 1848, and the local chapter gained national status in 1960. Each year the Kent group holds the traditional Fiji Island Party as its top social event.

Tau Kappa Epsilon

The Colony of Tau Kappa Epsilon has been a member of Kent's fraternity system since 1959 when the group gained colony status from Interfraternity Council. The main goal of the colony's 31 men is to become charter members of the largest national social fraternity, Tau Kappa Epsilon. The colony has shown desire for campus and national recognition by participation in Greek activities and membership in various University organizations. Members won a first-place trophy in Pork Barrel in 1961 and a second-place award for their Homecoming display last year. Taking active part in fraternity intramurals and IFC, the Teakes, as the group is known, hope to go national in 1963.

Cleop Club

Although a local sorority, the Cleops Club is hoping to gain recognition as a national organization. A probationary member of Panhellenic Council, the club has shown a desire for full acceptance by participating in all-campus activities. The group won second place in the Alpha Phi Omega quartet contest, took part in Penny Carnival and in intramurals with other campus sororities. A service as well as a social organization, the Cleops ushered at various University functions, stuffed envelopes for the Senior Women's Banquet and aided an underprivileged Kent family during the year.

Chi Sigma

Chi Sigma, the second of Kent's colonies, was founded in January, 1962. Since that time the Chi Sigs have been working toward the status of social fraternity. The colony was active in Interfraternity Council and fraternity intramurals. The 18 members are included in many of the functions held by the national fraternity, Sigma Chi. In May, 1962, the group attended Sigma Chi State Day in Columbus. During the summer a delegate was sent to the Sigma Chi workshop in Illinois. Chi Sigma also participated in social events with the Akron alumni chapter of Sigma Chi.

Delta Sigma Pi professional fraternity

PUBLICITY COMMITTEE
Using business knowledge to promote smoker.

Combining business with pleasure is Delta Sigma Pi, national Professional business fraternity. Organized on campus in 1938 as Delta Kappa Pi, the local chapter affiliated nationally in 1942. In line with its two-fold purpose, Delta Sigma Pi fostered scholarship in the study of business while encouraging a varied social life. With 35 members, the fraternity sponsored an array of professional and social events during the year: a Monte Carlo party, student-faculty coffee hours, winter and spring formals and field trips. The Delta Sigs annually present a scholarship key to the outstanding graduate in the College of Business Administration. The fraternity took second place in softball competition for independent men last spring.

Seniors

Two months before President Bowman took office in 1944, Kent State University's enrollment totalled 891 students. This June, the University will graduate more than 1,000 seniors, attesting to the phenomenal growth of the campus. For this thousand, it is hoped that the four-year molding process has served as a preparation for the larger education of daily life. In future years these, who have been part of the University world, may come to agree with Louisa May Alcott that "life is my college."
